Uncertain Times

World headlines were filled with news about nuclear arms and communist action this year.

People in France, West Germany, and Britain protested the deployment of the Pershing 11 missile system, while Americans spoke out against the nuclear build-up at the polls and in large protest rallies. On June 20, more than 1100 people were arrested throughout the country during Disarmament Action Day.

In other news, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa was freed from 11 months of military confinement in Poland, and Yuri Andropov became the new Soviet leader after the death of Leonid Brezhnev.

World Conflict

Pope John Paul II made headlines this year as he headed to Central America and to Poland to speak out against the abuse of human rights.

In the fall, U.S. Marines landed in Beirut to oversee the departure of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). And on May 17, the Israelis and the Lebanese signed a withdrawal agreement from Lebanon.

On the Lighter Side

World News spotlighted several happier notes this year as The World's Fair opened in Knoxville, Tennessee. More than 11 million visitors came to the fair over the six-month exposition.

In the fall, Prince William Arthur Phillip Louis, infant son of Prince Charles and Lady Diana, was introduced to the world.

Queen Elizabeth II also made the news by making a week-long visit to the West Coast of The United States.

International News

Hard Times

Citizens had to deal with tough times this year as the unemployment rate soared to a post-depression all-time high.

And with flooding in the Mississippi region, heavy snow storms in Colorado, and damaging storms on the West Coast, many people had to fight to keep their homes. Because of the many disasters caused by the weather, The American Red Cross announced that its disaster relief fund was bankrupt.

Panic struck the nation in the fall with the Tylenol scare, while the increased detection of Acquired Immunities Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) had caused many to stop donating blood.

While there was yet no cure for AIDS, the year was highlighted with several scientific successes. The first artificial heart was implanted, and NASA announced that Pioneer 10 became the first man-made device to leave the solar system.

That's Entertainment

Epcot Center opened this year as the new one billion dollar addition to the Disney empire.

It was a good year for the movies as "ET: The Extra-Terrestrial" became the biggest box-office attraction in history. "Gandhi" won the Oscar for best picture, and many went to see Dustin Hoffman in "Tootsie," a comedy that spotlighted the treatment of women in the work-place.

Although the football season got off to a rough start with the 54-day strike, the Washington Redskins won Super Bowl XVII. The St. Louis Cardinals claimed the World Series victory, and the horse, Sunny Halo, won the Kentucky Derby.

Around Campus

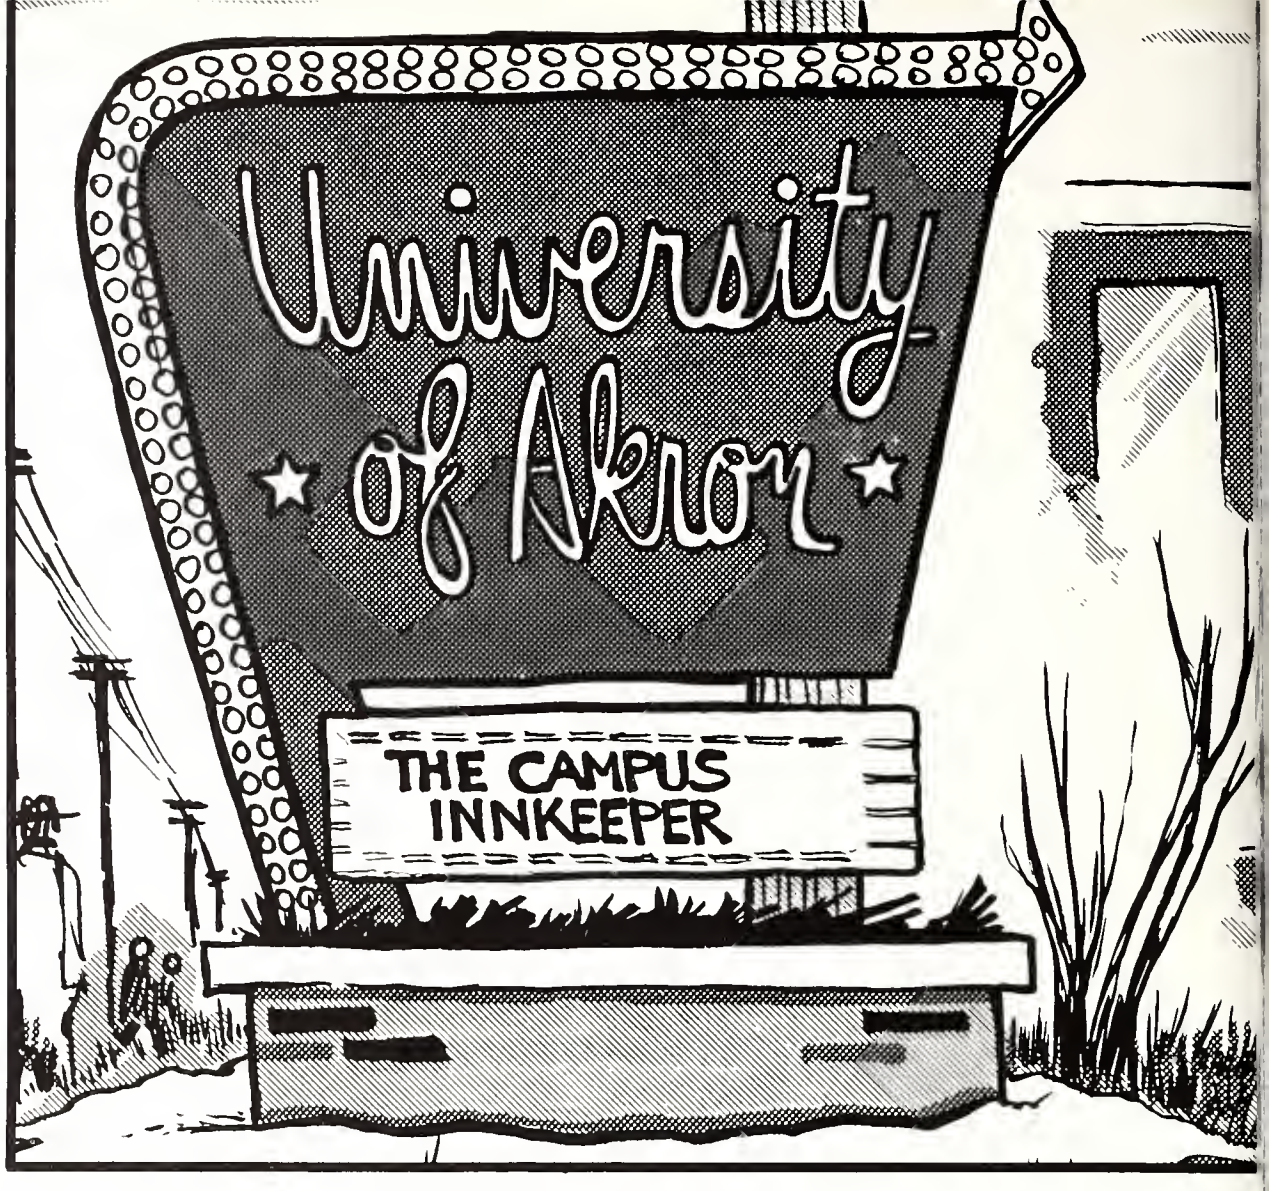
Many changes at The University of Akron made the headlines this year.

The Gardner Student Center addition was dedicated in the fall, while the new gymnasium was halted temporarily because of a lawsuit concerning competitive bids.

Earlier in the year, the university acquired the Holiday Inn and the Dave Towell Cadillac building for further expansion.

Student enrollment figures continued to break past records, while The Board of Trustees approved increases in tuition, student service fees, and residence hall fees.

In other news, Barnes and Noble purchased the bookstore facility, and the university began conferring January degrees.



The University of Akron purchased the Holiday Inn. It is now a residence hall and classroom facility.

University Officials

City to close College St.

Akrun plans to close South College Street at Buchtel Avenue on the University of Akron campus beginning Wednesday.

City traffic engineer David Fielder said university officials asked for the closing after student Joann [illegible] was killed in a traffic accident March 1.

The 20-year-old nursing major was hit by an airport limousine as she crossed nearby Center Street on her way to class.

Fielder said the College-Buchtel intersection is one of the busiest on the campus.

Concrete barricades will be erected Wednesday morning to close off about a half-block of College north of Buchtel, Fielder said.

The barricades will prevent vehicular traffic on Buchtel from turning onto College or traffic on College from entering Buchtel.

The plan was criticized by Michael Trecaso, who said it would hurt business by reducing traffic past his pizza restaurant, two blocks north of Buchtel at South College and South

Akron U will show expanded student

University of Akron officials will cut the ribbon next week on the $4 million expansion at the Gardner Student Center on Carroll Street, and they are sponsoring a variety of events to showcase the changes.

The dedication is scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday at the building's east tower, one of the two staircase towers on the northern edge of Lee R. Jackson field.

Events are designed to demonstrate the center's varied uses, according to center director Bud Marston.

The expansion includes an addition to the bookstore; more than 300 new seats and a stage and entertainment area in the Chuckery; the center's fast-food restaurant; a new lounge-lobby; five conference rooms; a new meeting room for the board of trustees; a banquet kitchen; and a 530-seat theater.

"Dedication week" events, all free except for films, are:

Monday — Ribbon-cutting, 11 a.m., Lee Jackson Field, international lunch noon with Dixieland band, 11 a.m. to p.m., Hilltop Dining Room; opening of Perkins Lounge, with art display, 2

The President

Dr. Dominic Guzzetta has served as President of The University of Akron for twelve years.

In his annual address to the faculty, President Guzzetta outlined several goals for the university.

He stressed the importance of maintaining quality and currency in the university's curriculum, as well as accelerating research and public service programs.

In an effort to combine university and community resources, the planning of a convocation center was started in the spring.

University College

The University College provides baccalaureate students with a broad background of studies to complement major fields of interest.

In addition to studying world history, speech, mathematics, and composition, students may choose from a variety of science and social science courses to complete university requirements.

Two students get practice scoring in bowling.

R.O.T.C. students study map reading.

Western Cultural Traditions is held in E.J. Thomas Hall.

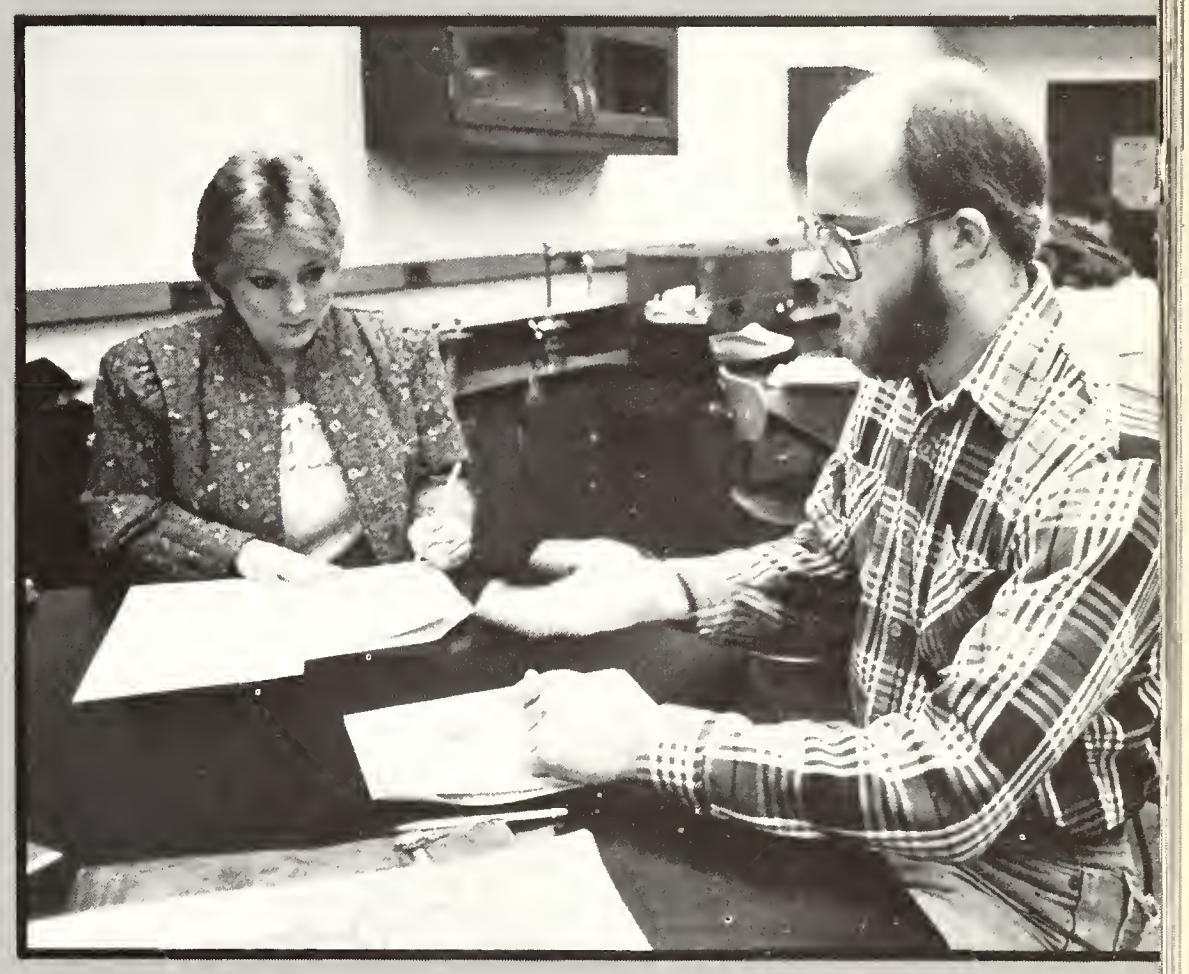
Organic chemistry allows for hands-on experience.

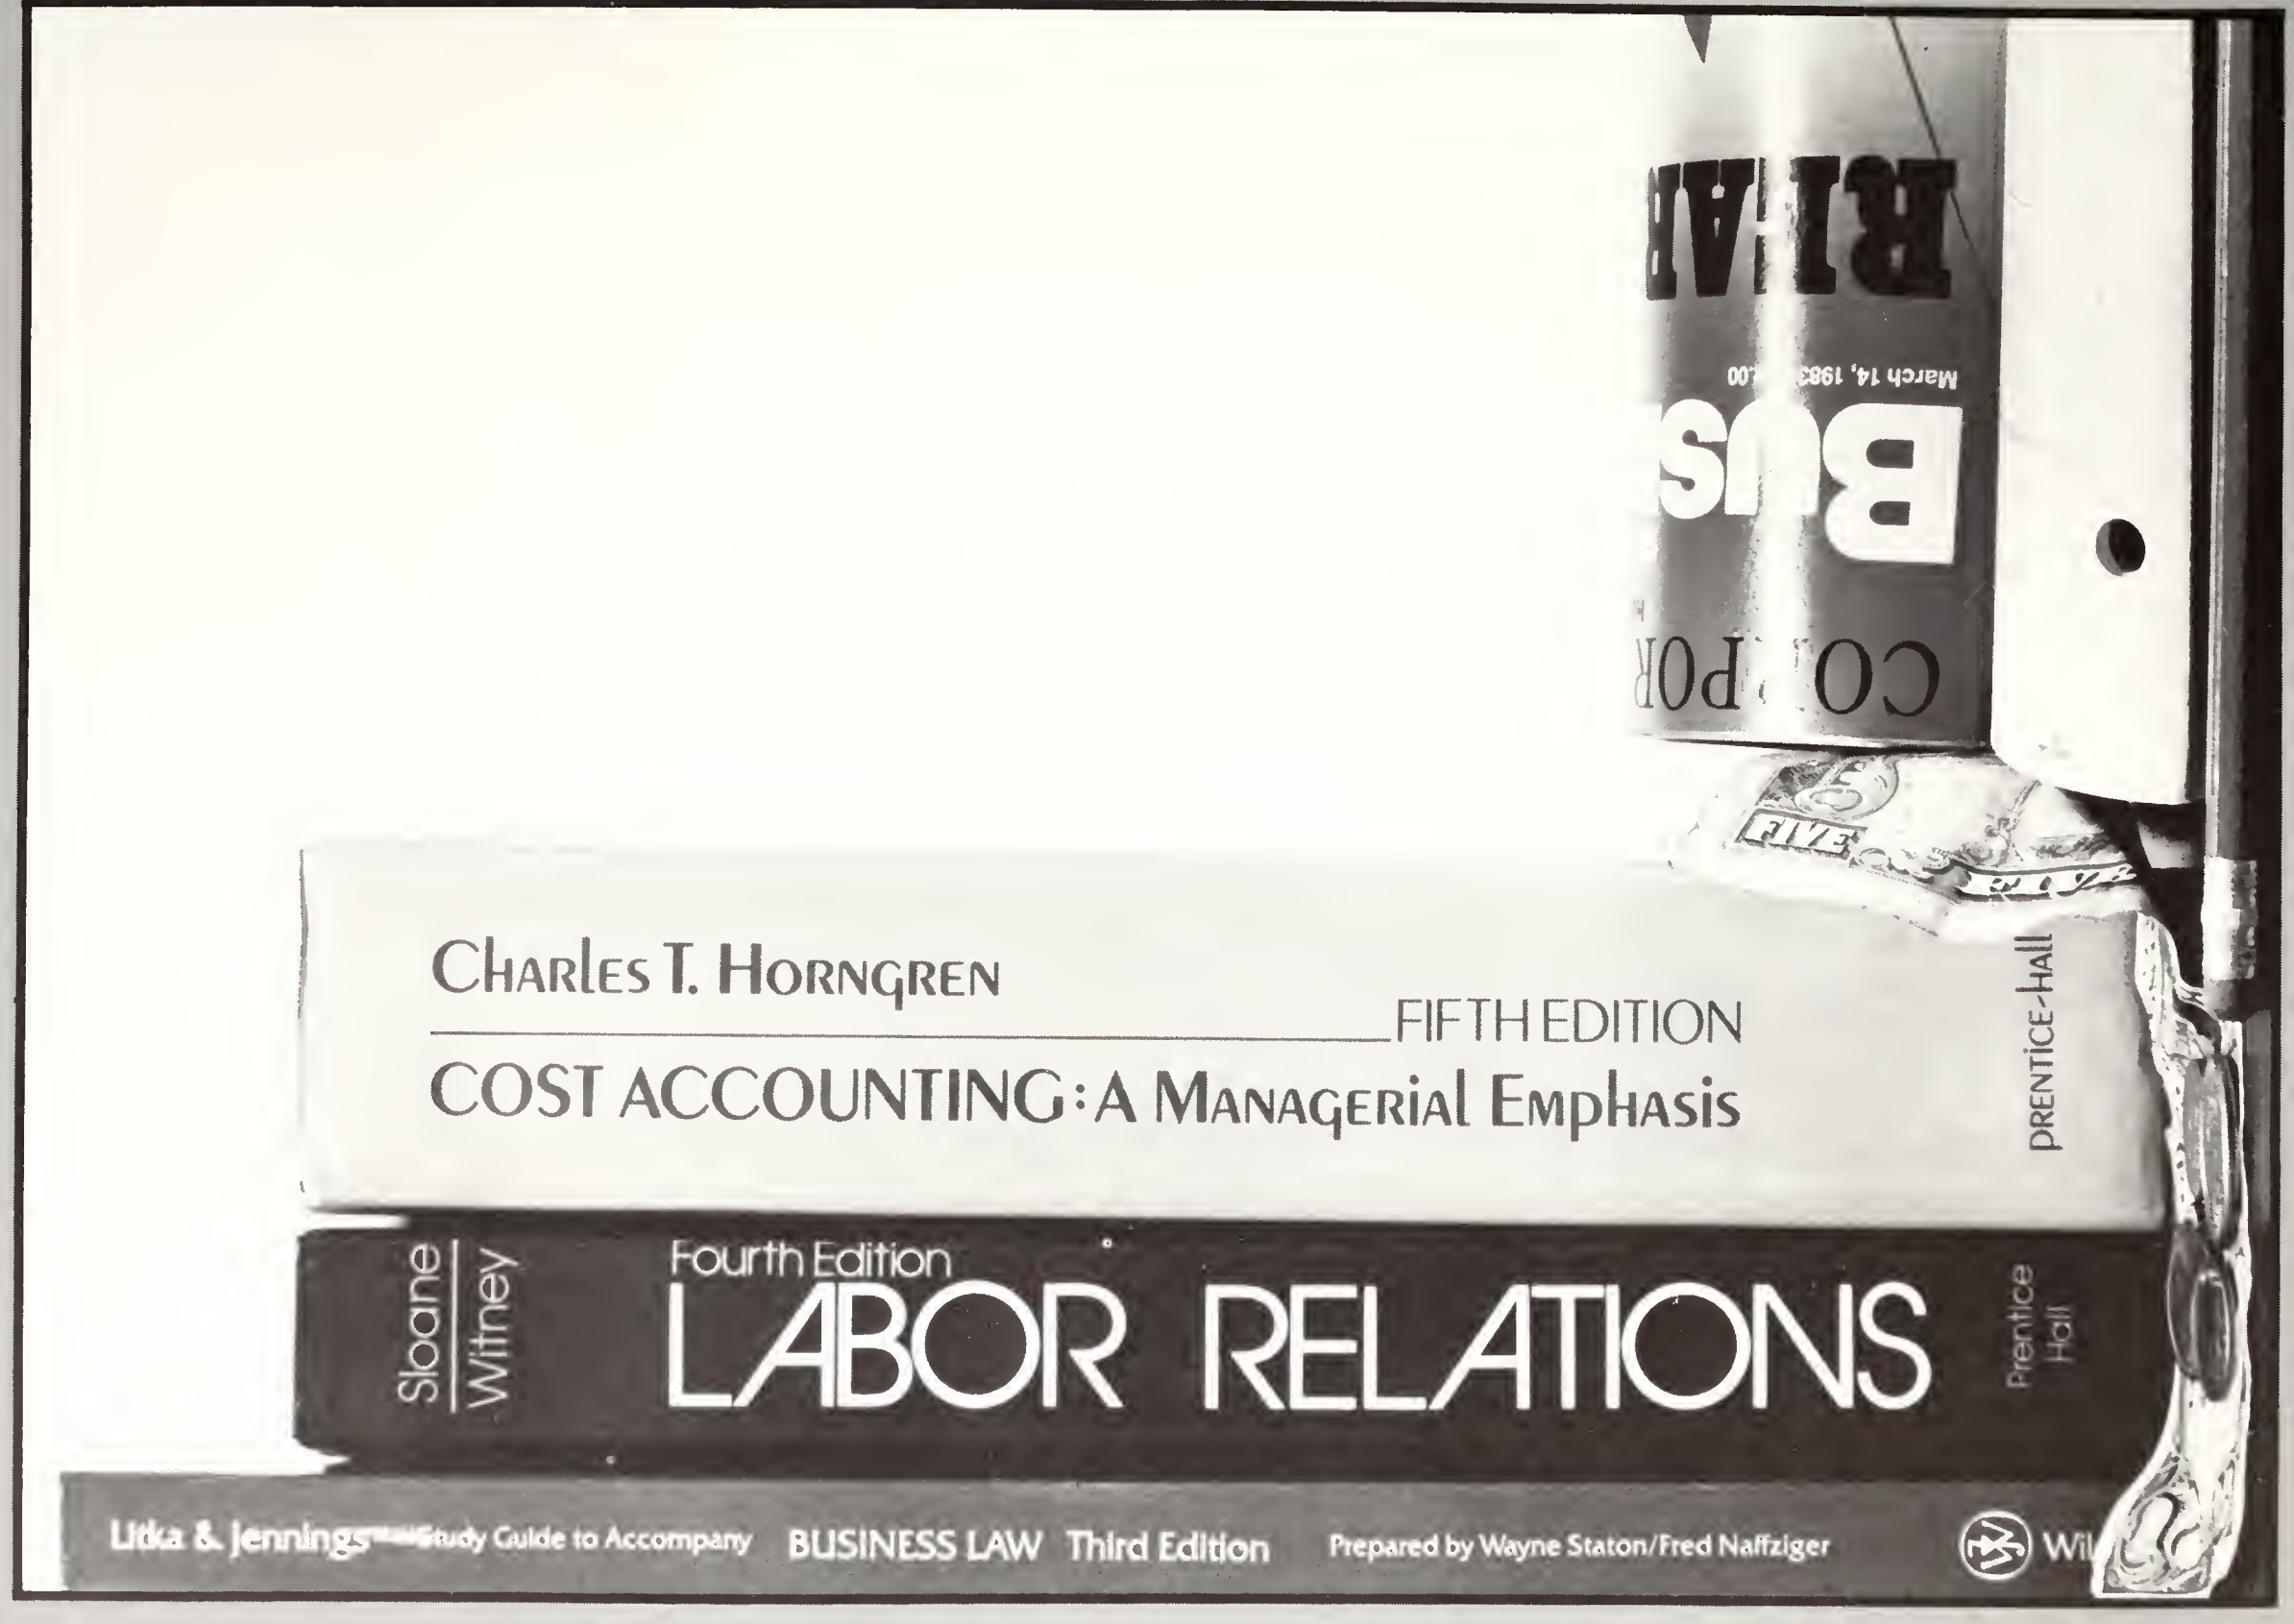


Students work together on a probability project in biology.

The College of Arts and Sciences is the most diversified four-year college at The University of Akron.

The college offers over 40 degrees in the humanities, the natural sciences, and the social sciences.

In addition to working toward a degree, students may also earn a certificate in 17 areas of study by taking additional courses. Certificate programs include environmental studies, peace studies, and computer science.



College of Business Administration

Business students spend a lot of time at the Computer Center.

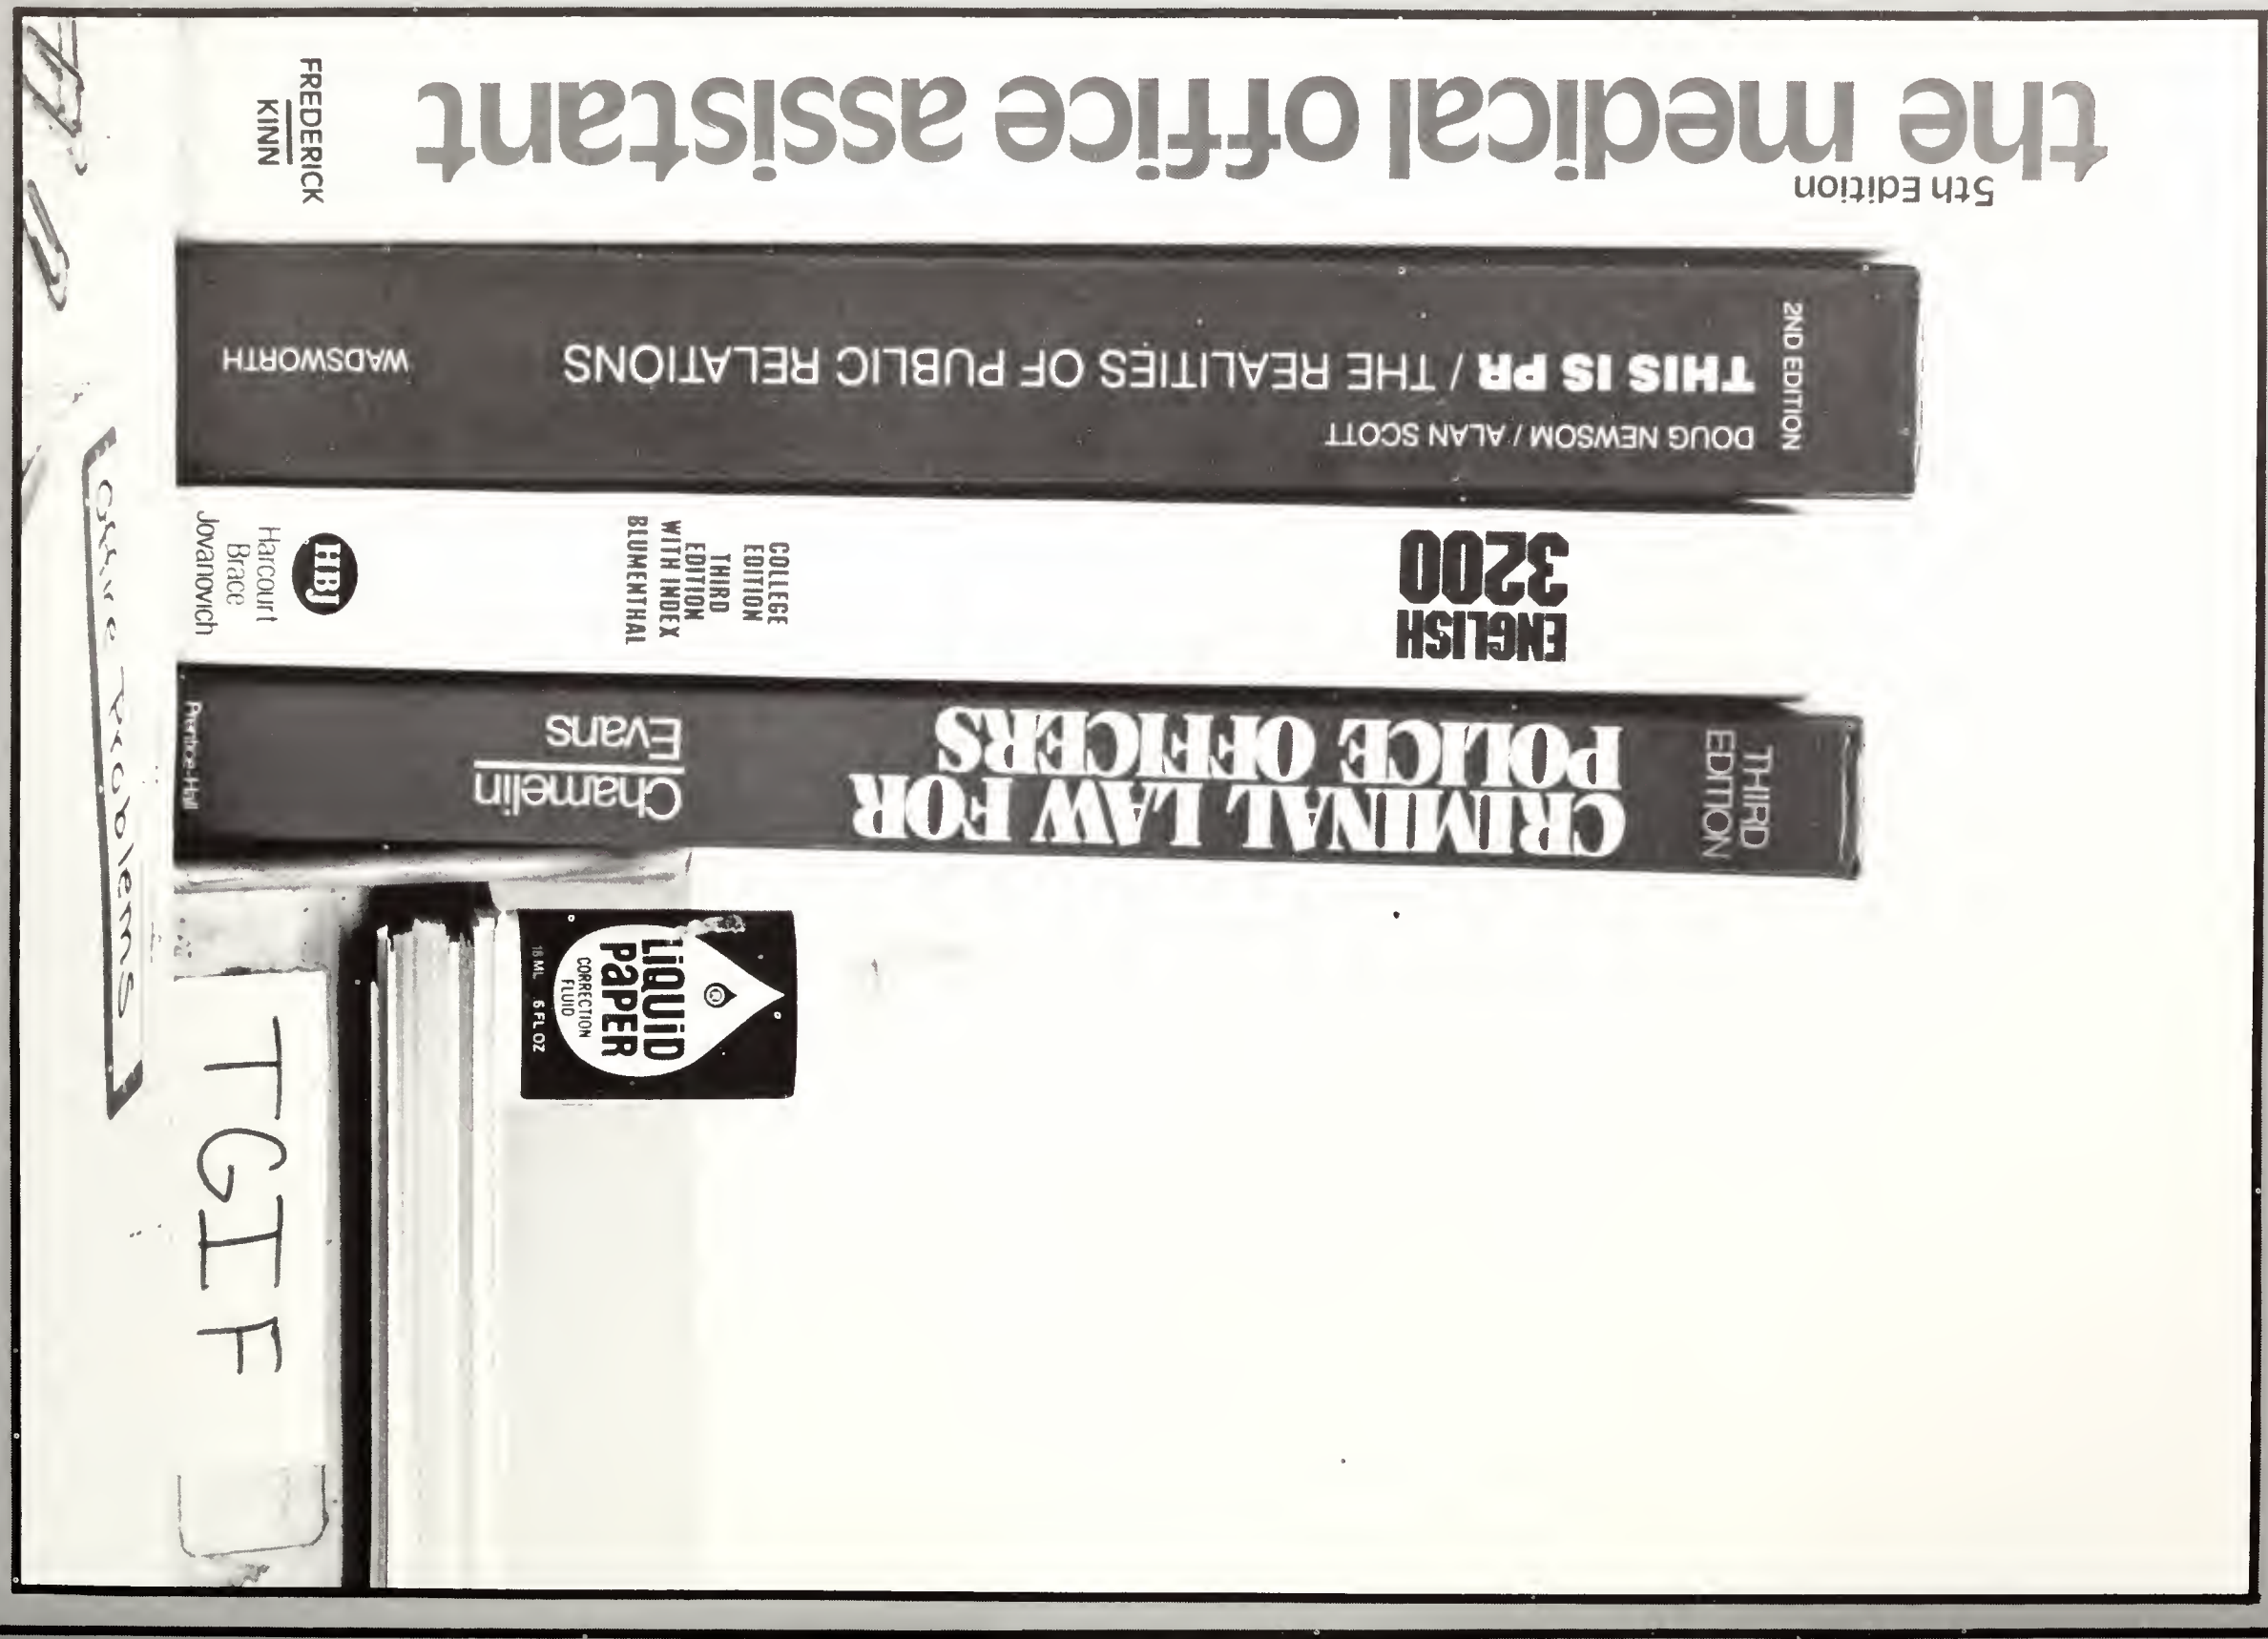
inance major benefits from a speaker sponsored by The Finance Club.

A student checks some figures for a data processing class.

The College of Business Administration offers undergraduate degrees in accounting, finance, international business, management, and marketing.

Through classroom work, internships, and a well-developed group of student organizations such as The Accounting Association, Student Toastmasters, and Delta Sigma Pi, business students are exposed to a variety of experiences that prepare them for the business world.

Community and Technical College

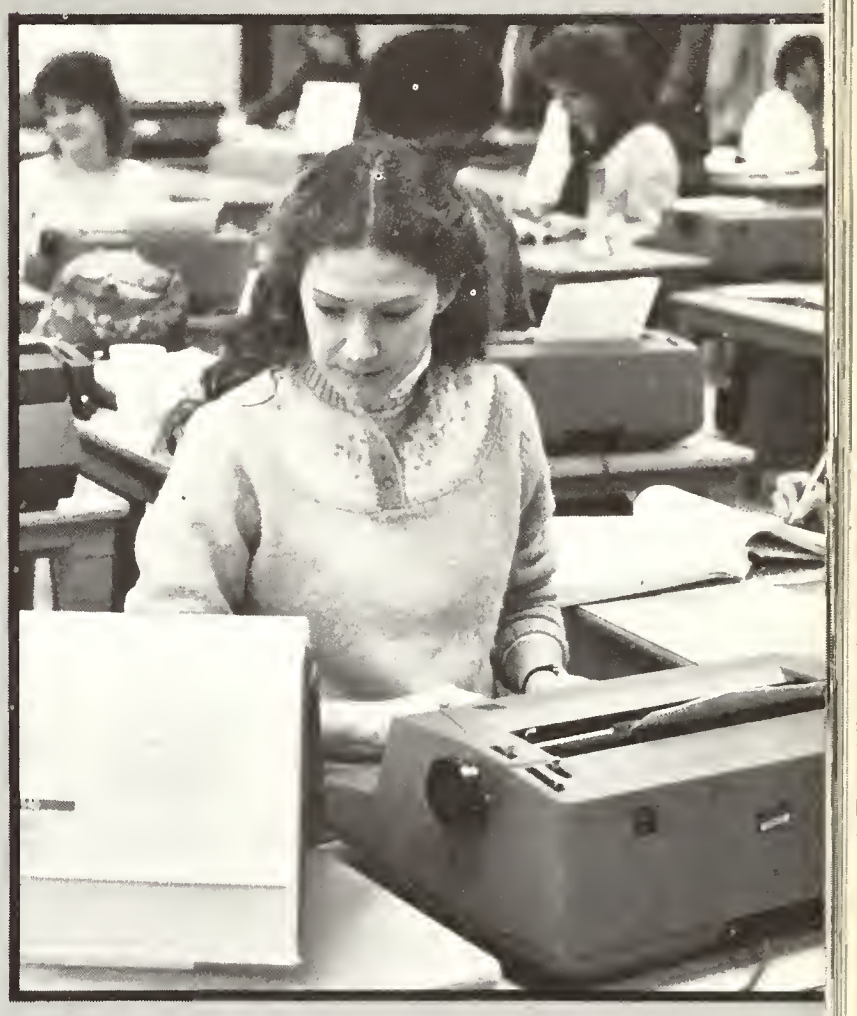


Technical Drawing Lab can be tedious work.

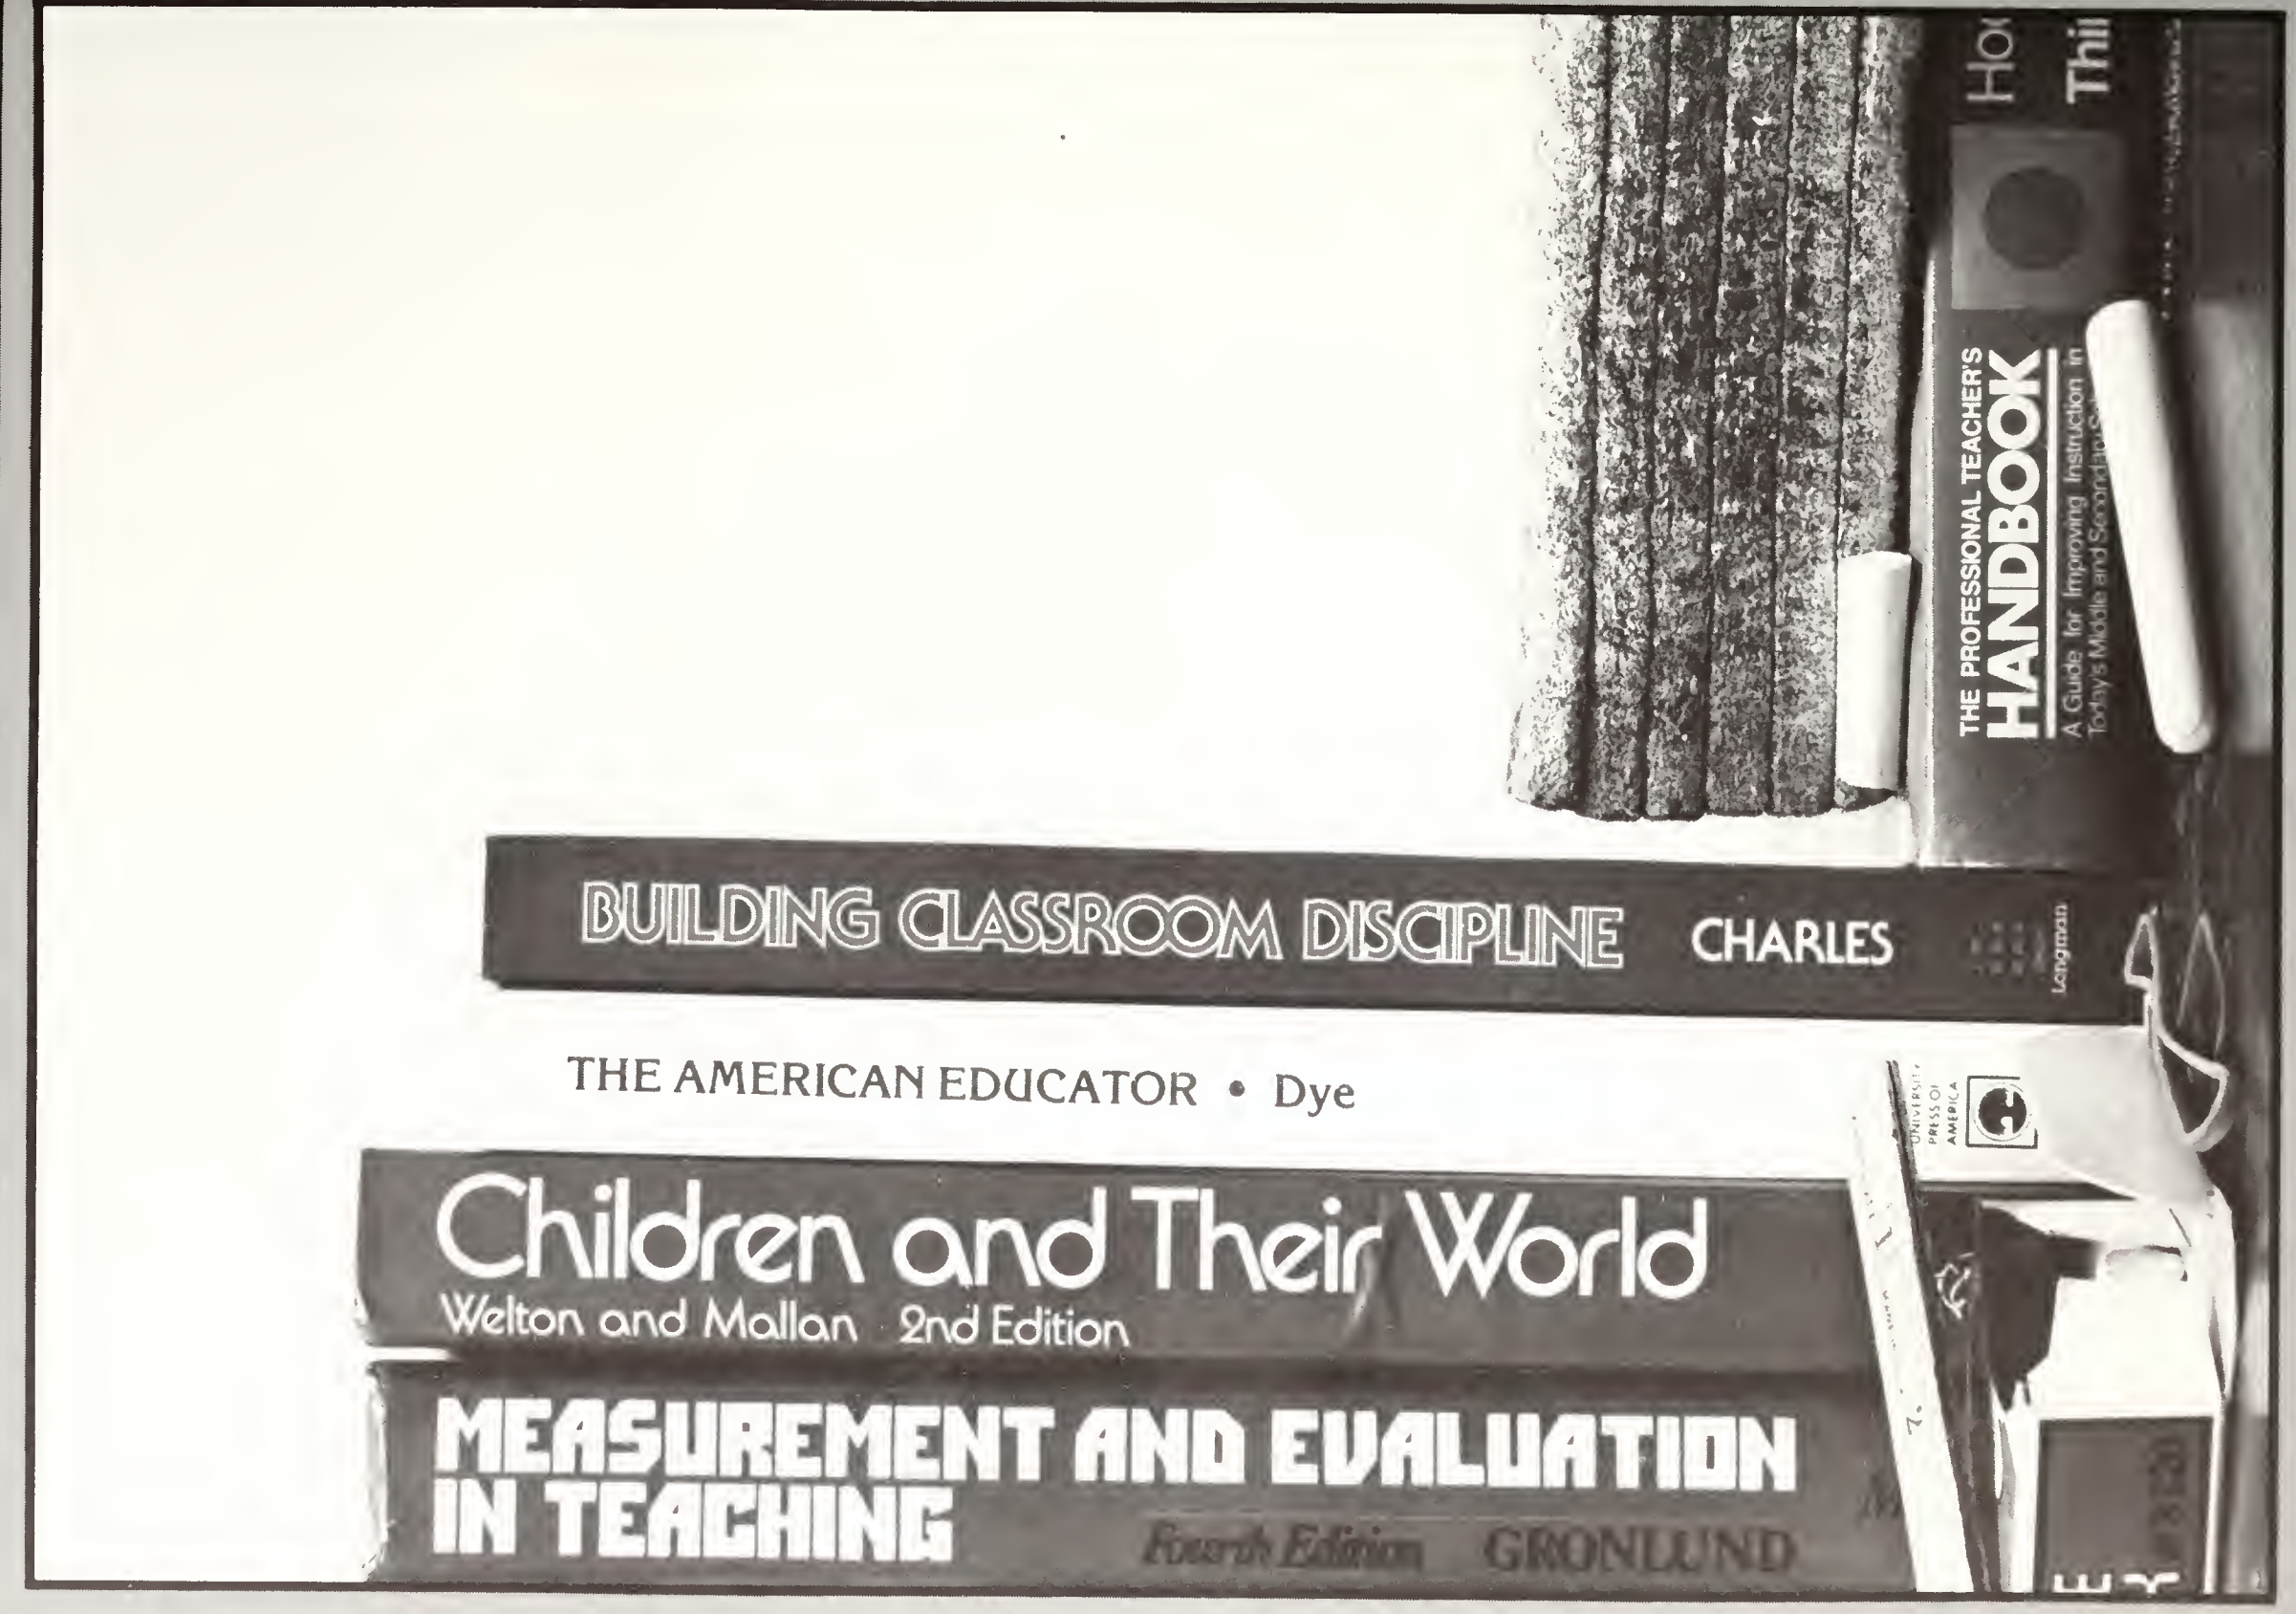
The Community and Technical College offers over 45 associate degree programs in several main areas of study.

In addition to taking general courses in composition, speech, mathematics, and physical education, students may earn a two-year degree by specializing in areas such as Business Management Technology, Marketing and Sales Technology, Office Services Technology, and Allied Health Technology.

Introduction to Business teaches business basics. BOTTOM: Students learn calligraphy.



Typing is part of the Secretarial Science program.



College of Education

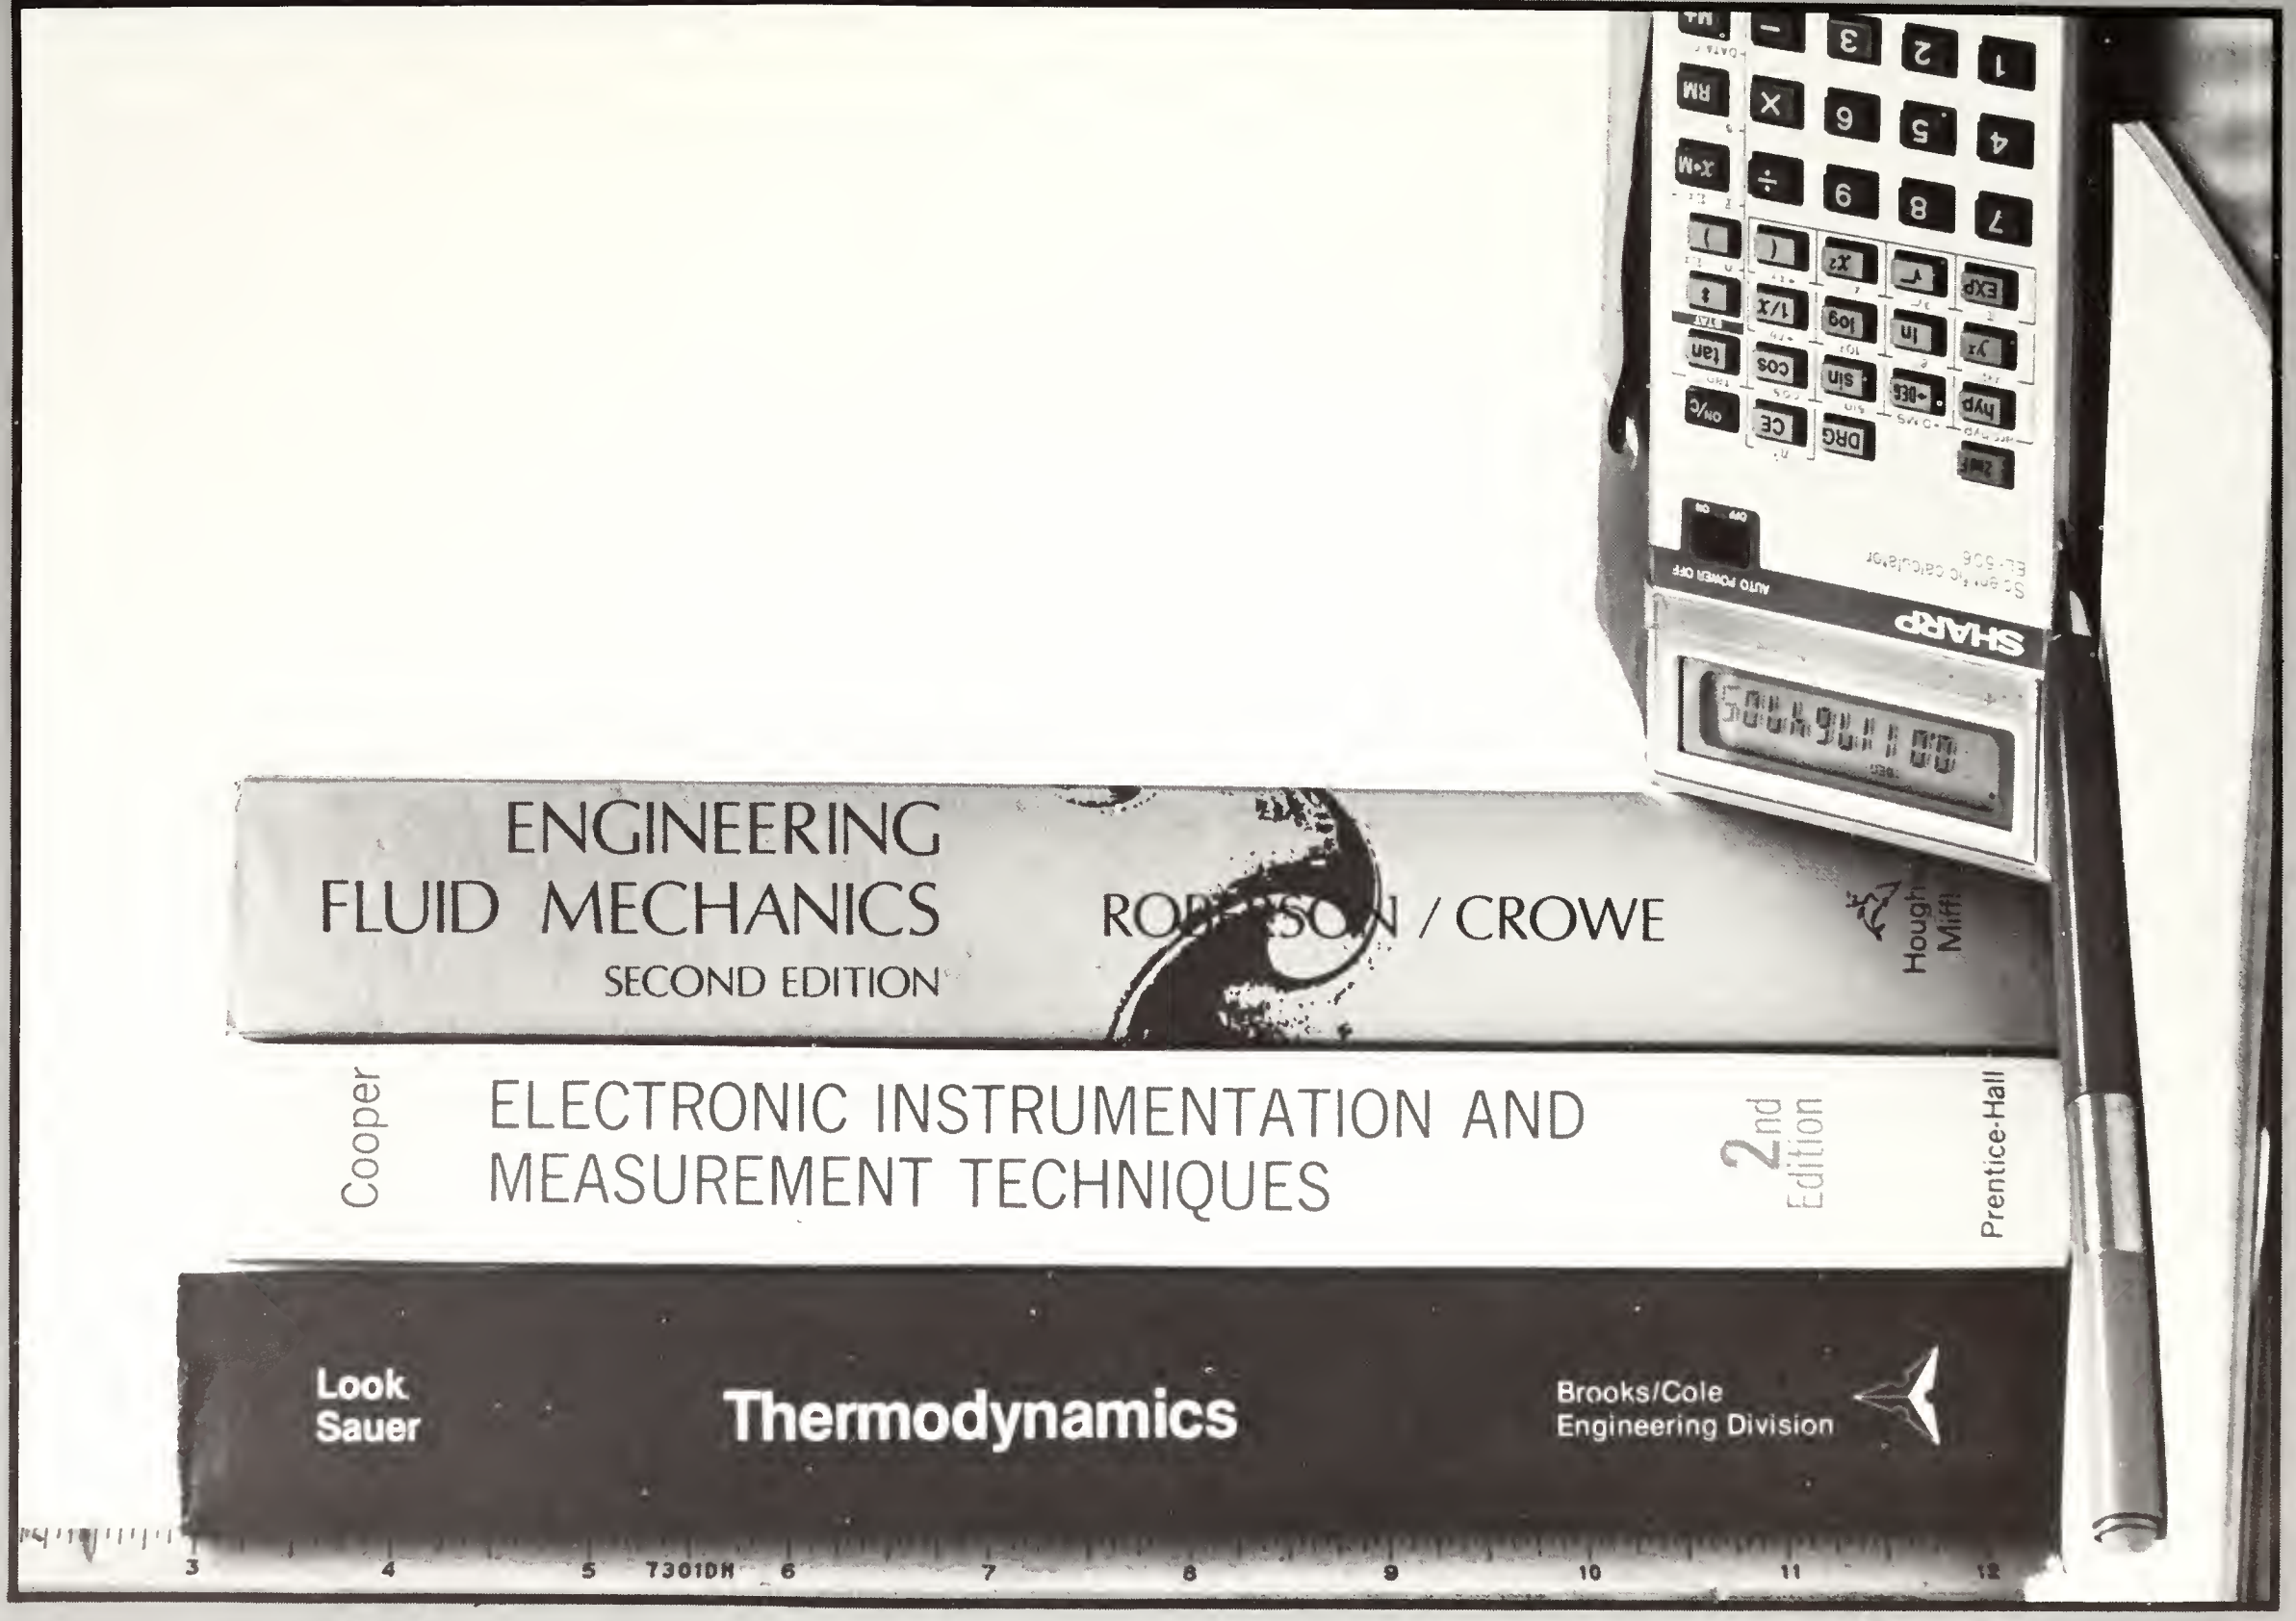
Physical education majors learn CPR in their first-aid class.

The College of Education offers four-year degree programs in several areas such as home economics, elementary, secondary, technical and vocational, special, physical, and musical education.

Working with local high schools and The Akron Public School System, students gain valuable experience in tutoring and student teaching before they are certified by the state to teach.

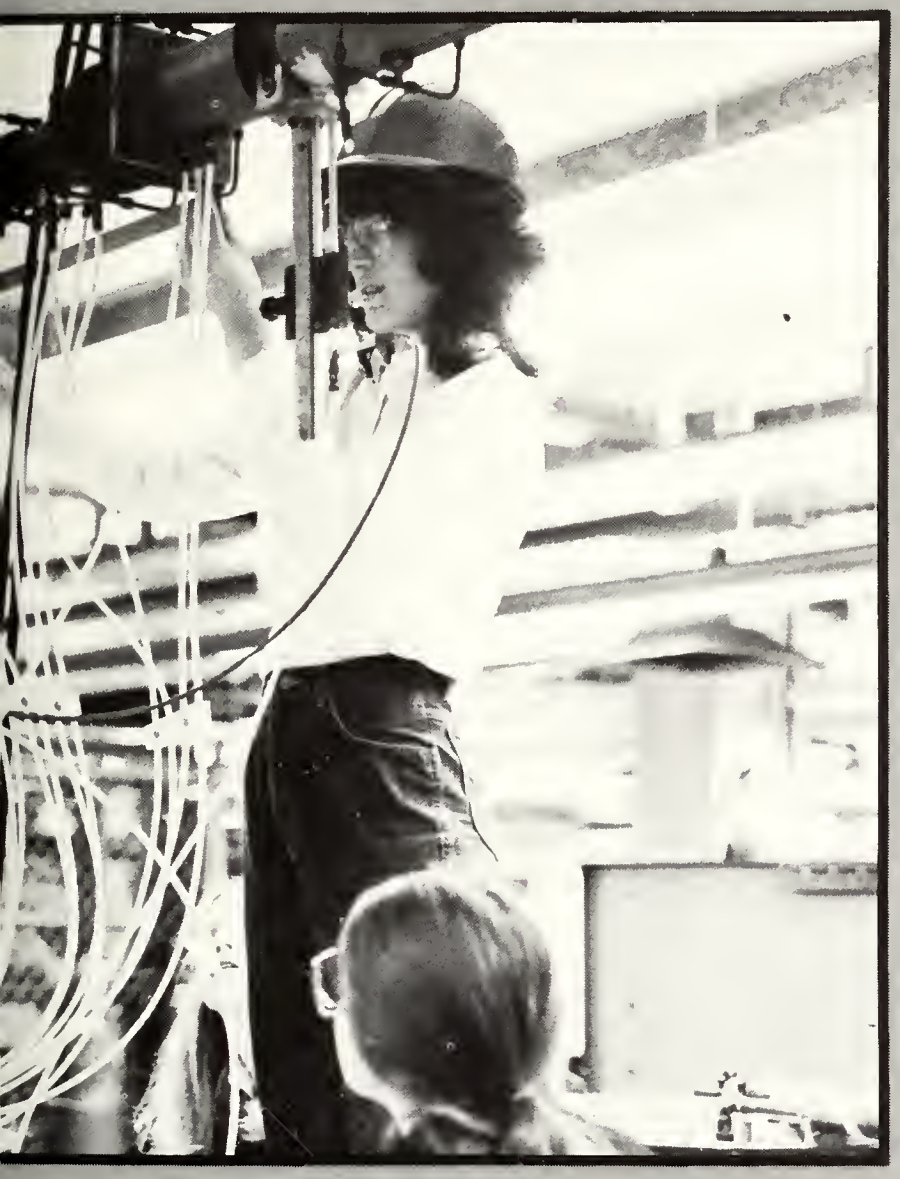
Students learn the fundamentals of secondary education.

Some education majors help out at the university's Day-Care Center.



College of Engineering

Engineering students participate annually in a concrete canoe competition.



Electrical engineering students work on energy conservation.

A student works in Digital Data and Simulation Lab.

Engineering Graphics Lab allows for a lot of practice.

The College of Engineering offers degrees in chemical, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering, and construction technology.

Students may participate in several student organizations and the cooperative program to gain more insight and experience in their specialized field of engineering.

The formation of the Center for Polymer Engineering was announced in the spring in an effort to place The University of Akron at the forefront of polymer research.

Evening College and Summer Sessions

Moving practice outside is part of studying in the summer.

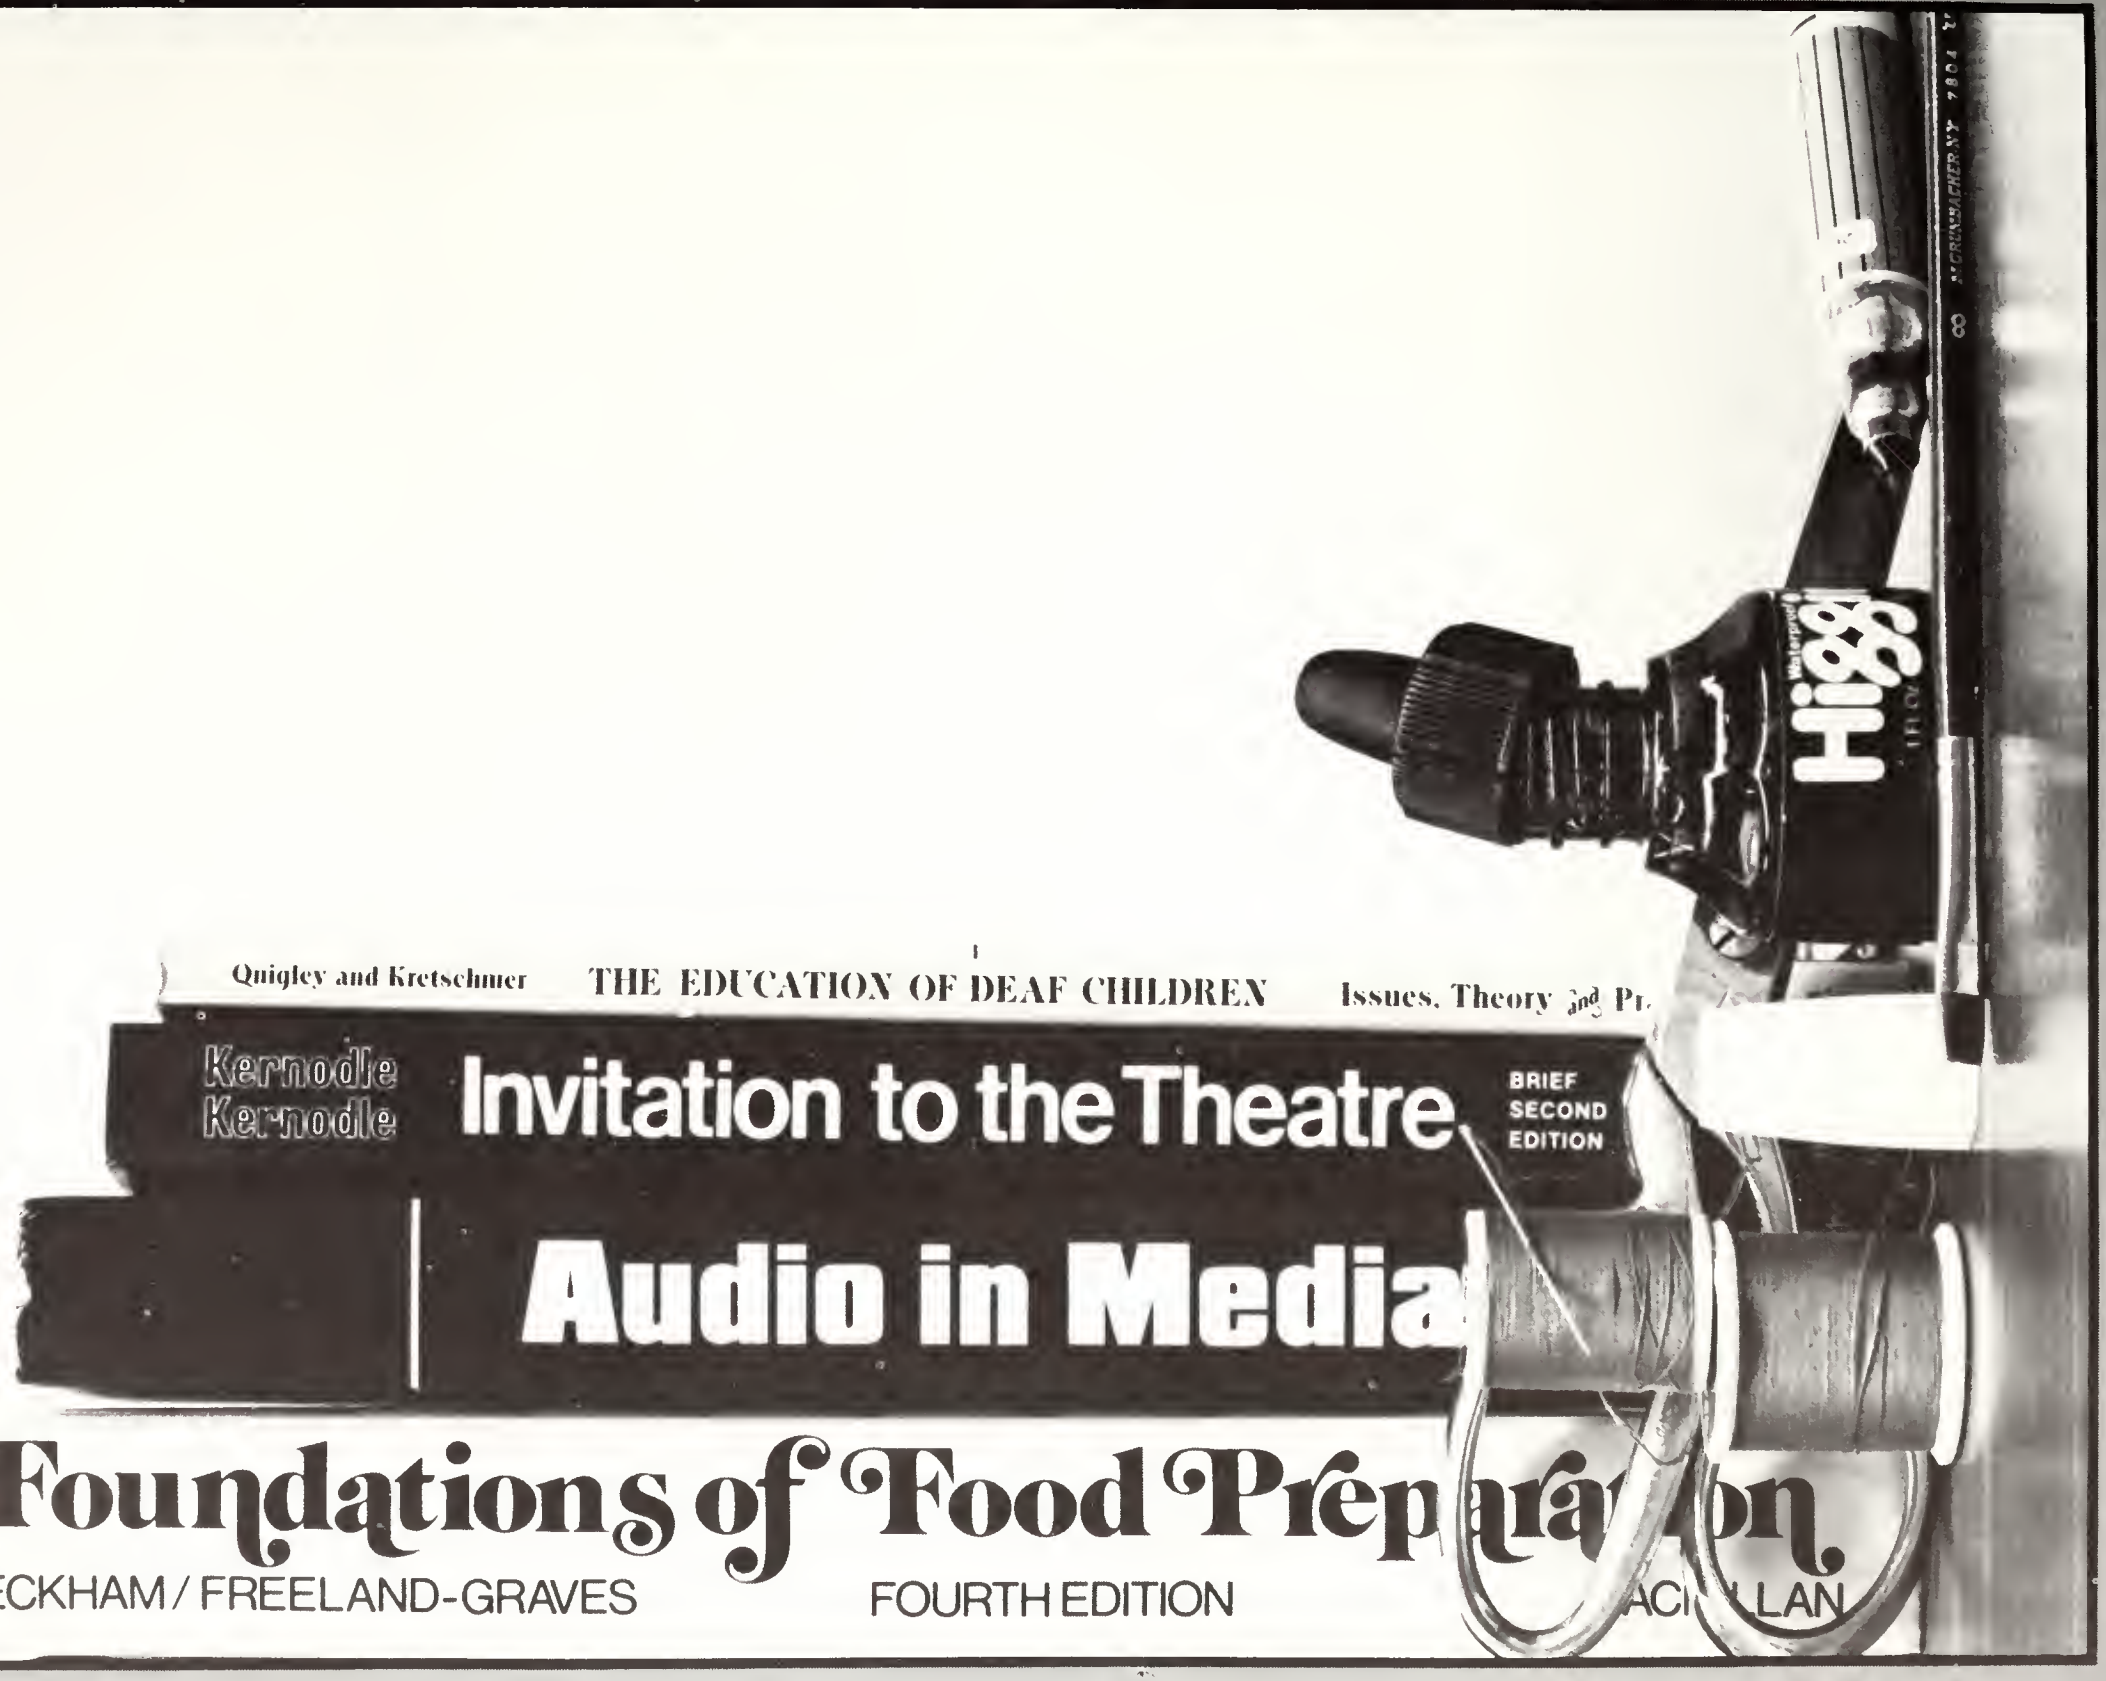
The Evening College and Summer Sessions division of the university allows students the option of taking classes in the evenings or during the two five-week summer sessions offered every year.

Evening students may participate in various activities sponsored by the college such as Evening Student Council, Gamma Beta, Chi Sigma Nu, and Nite-Life.

Evening classes allow for scheduling flexibility.

Tennis is offered year round.

Reading those assignments is a lot easier outside.



College of Fine and Applied Arts

A student plays in a Guzzetta Hall practice room.

The College of Fine and Applied Arts offers over forty degree programs on the bachelor's level.

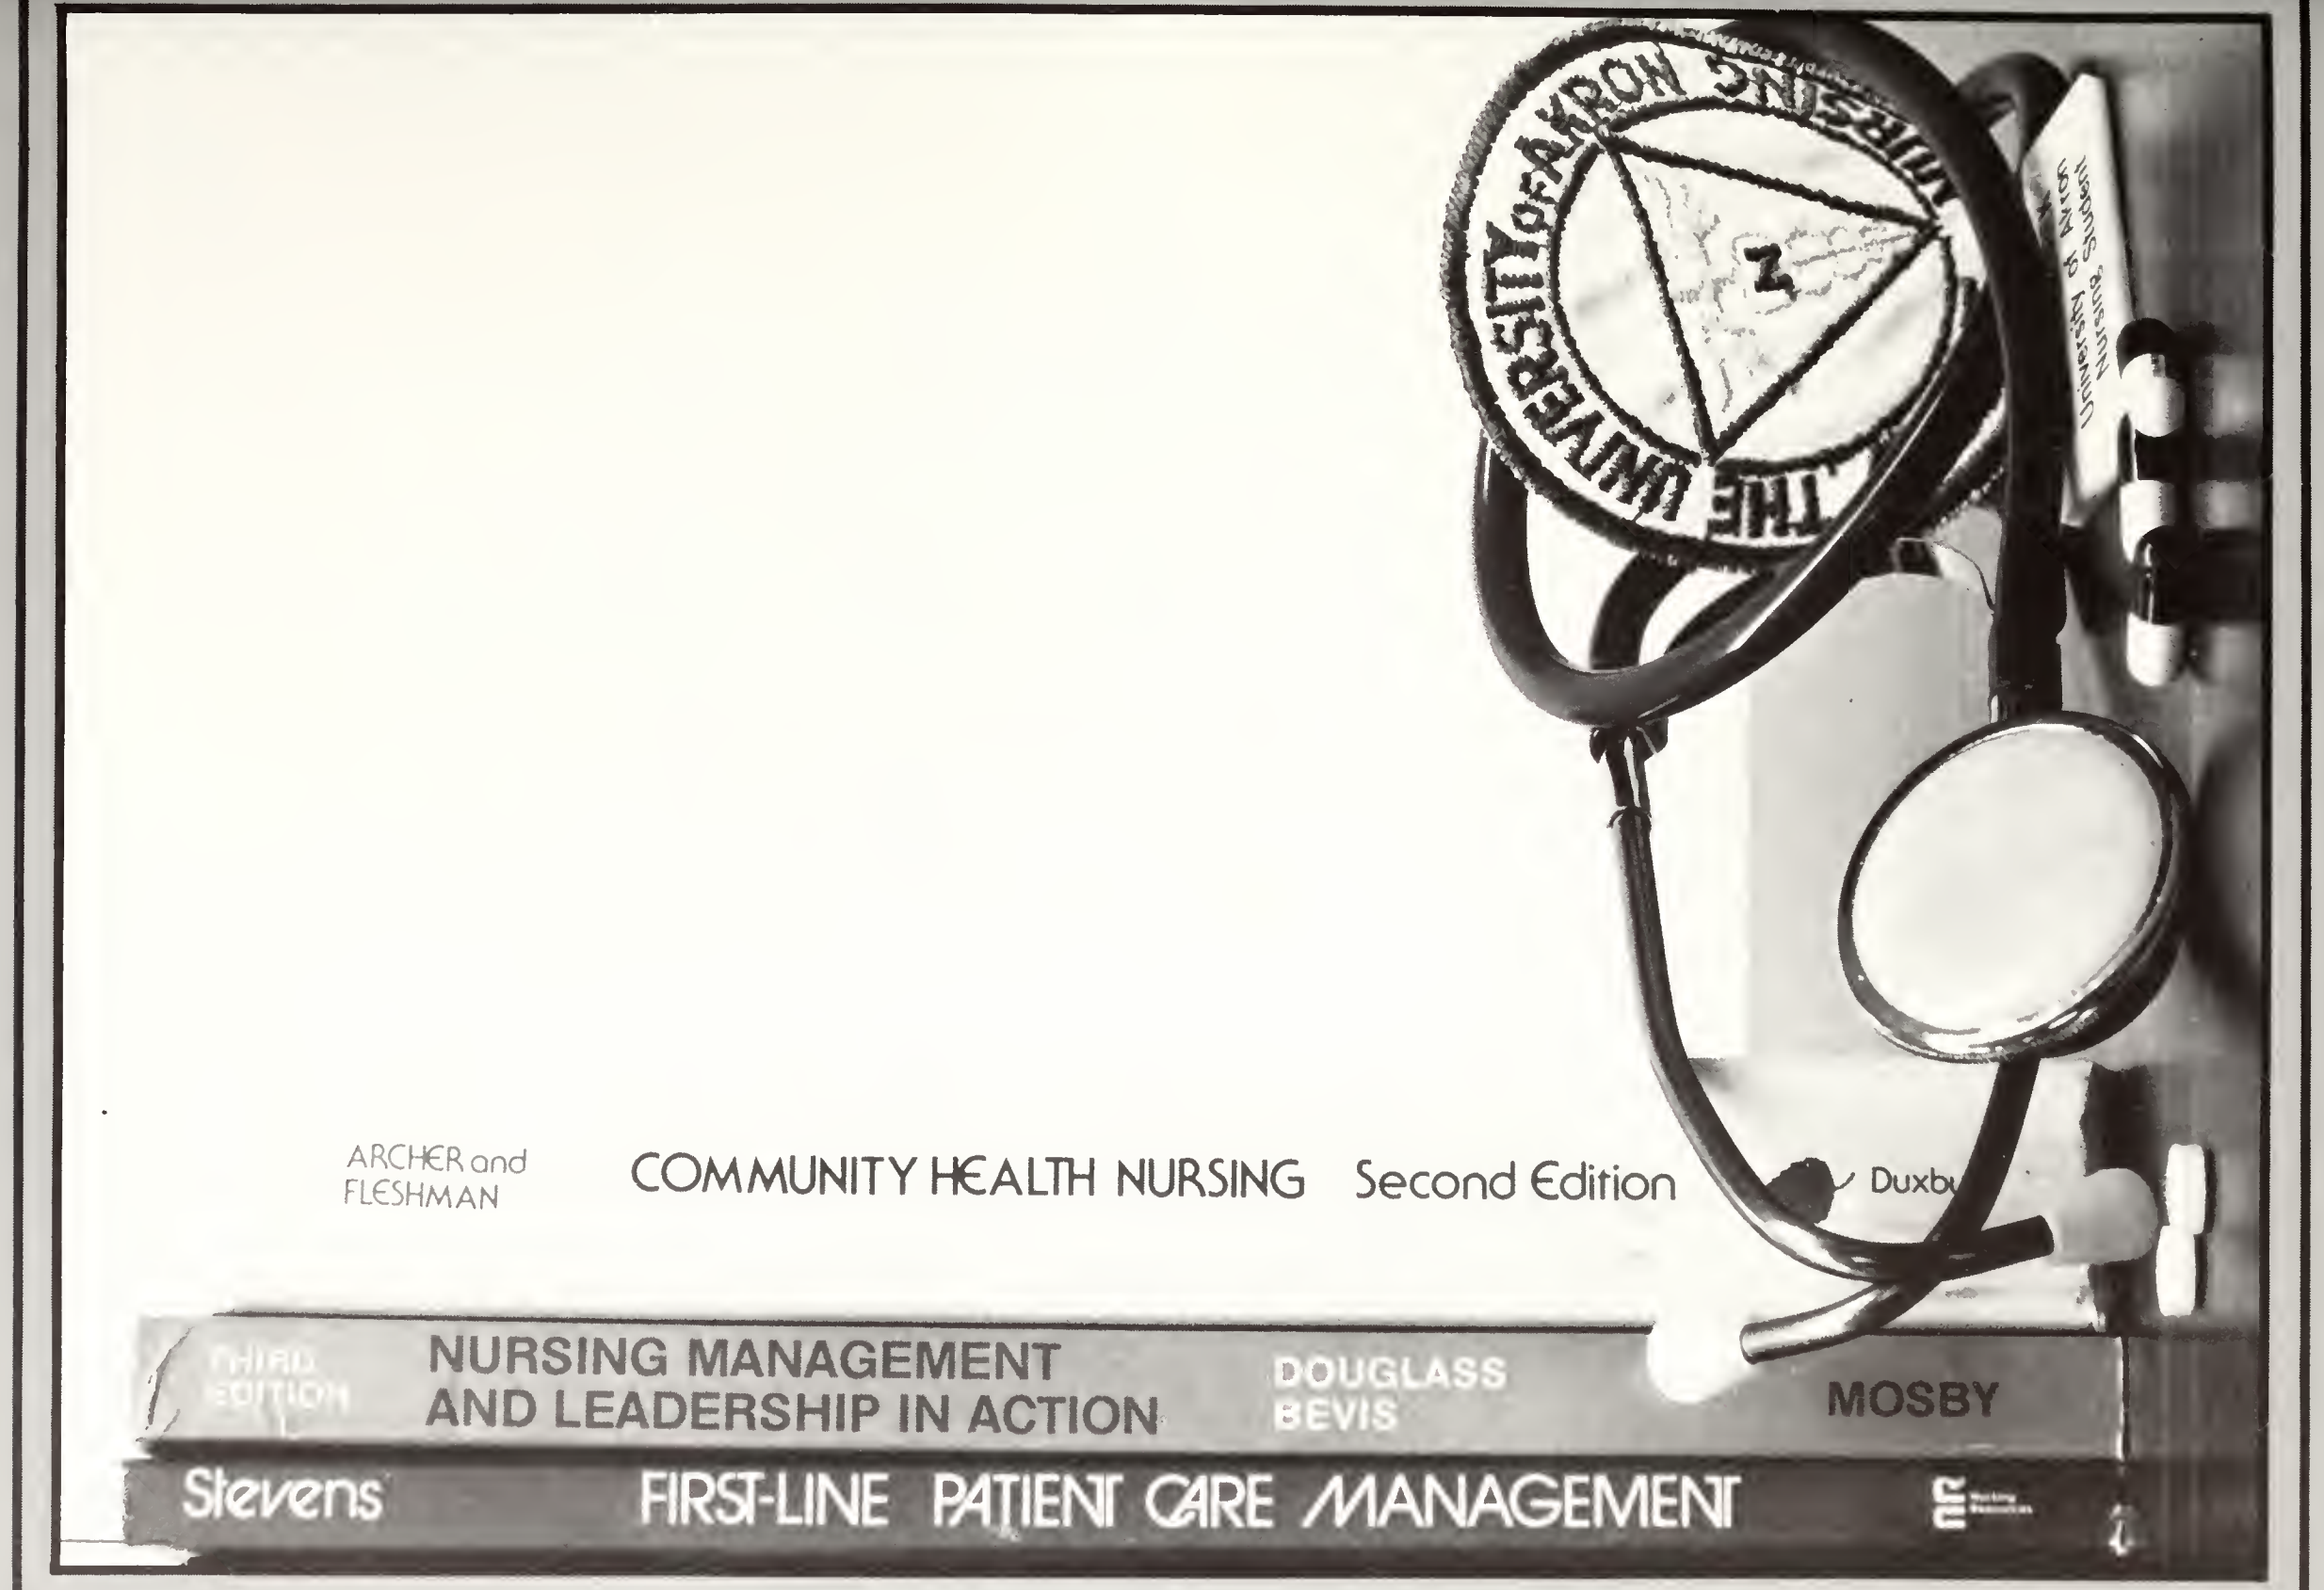
Students combine classroom knowledge with experience gained through labs, internships, and student organizations to prepare for various fields.

Departments in the college include Theatre Arts and Dance, Communication, Music, Social Work, Home Economics and Family Ecology, and Art.

Ceramics is one of the creative art options offered to students.

Communication students gain experience at WAUP.

Ballet demands skill and practice. BELOW: Students learn about proper nutrition in a family foods lab.



College of Nursing

Nursing students receive instruction on proper patient care.

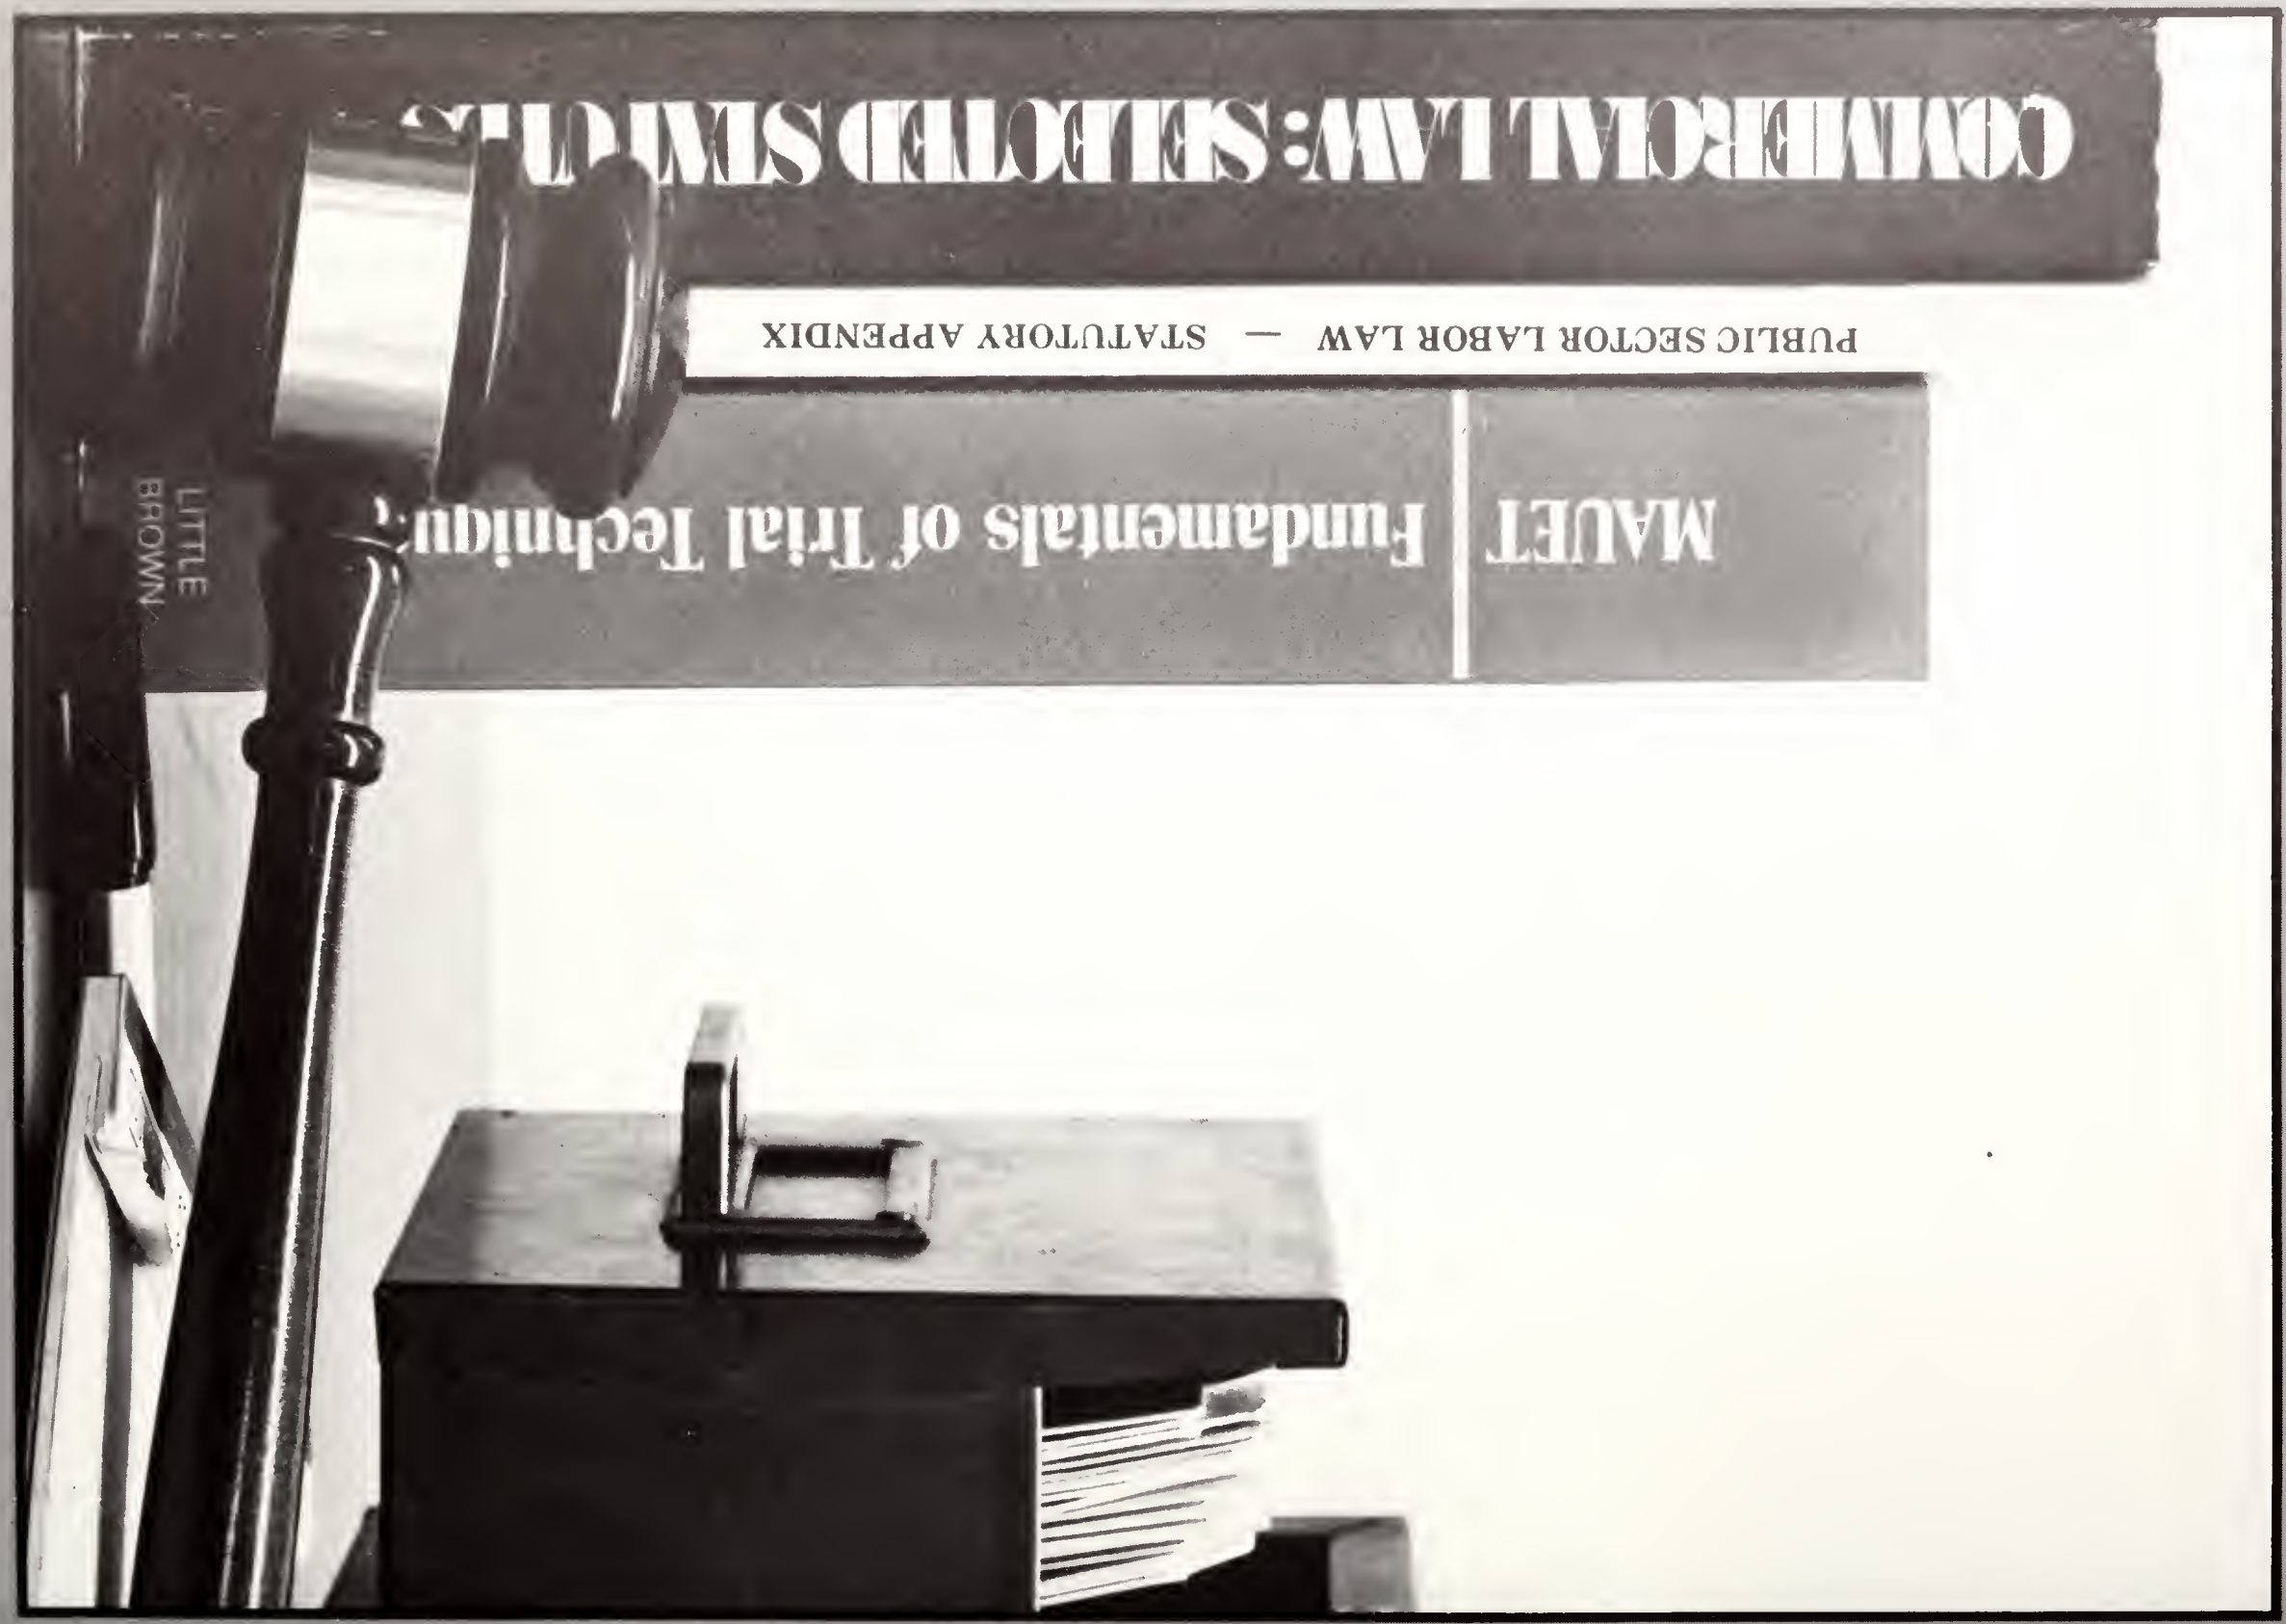
The College of Nursing prepares students to enter one of the most expanding fields in today's society.

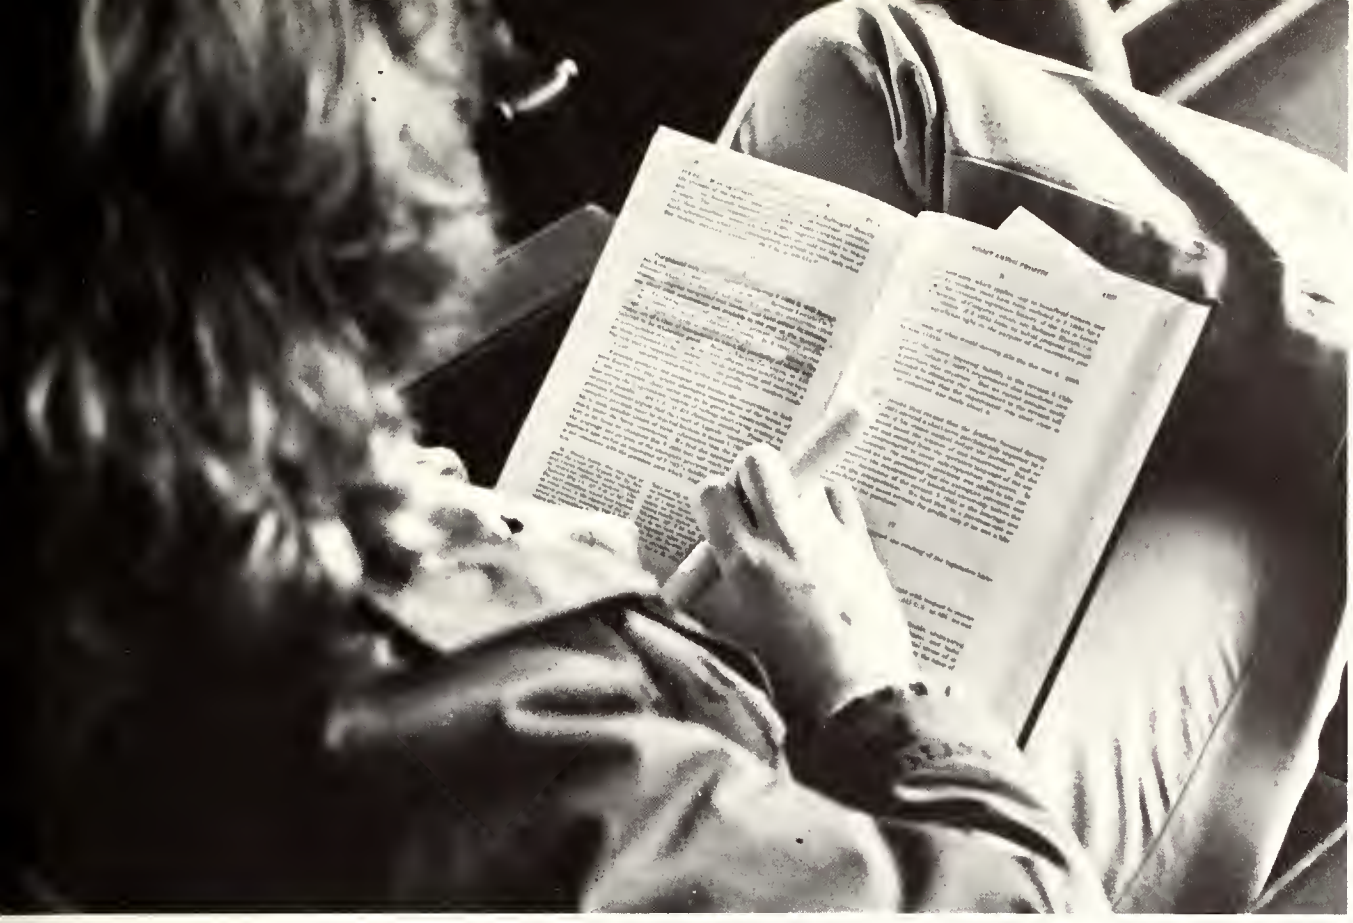
The nine-semester program provides students with classroom instruction and lab participation. Nursing students acquire practical experience by participating in observations and clinicals in area health facilities.

Nursing students receive many hours of classroom instruction.

A nursing lab enables students to practice skills.

School of Law





Students use the lobby for last minute reading before class.

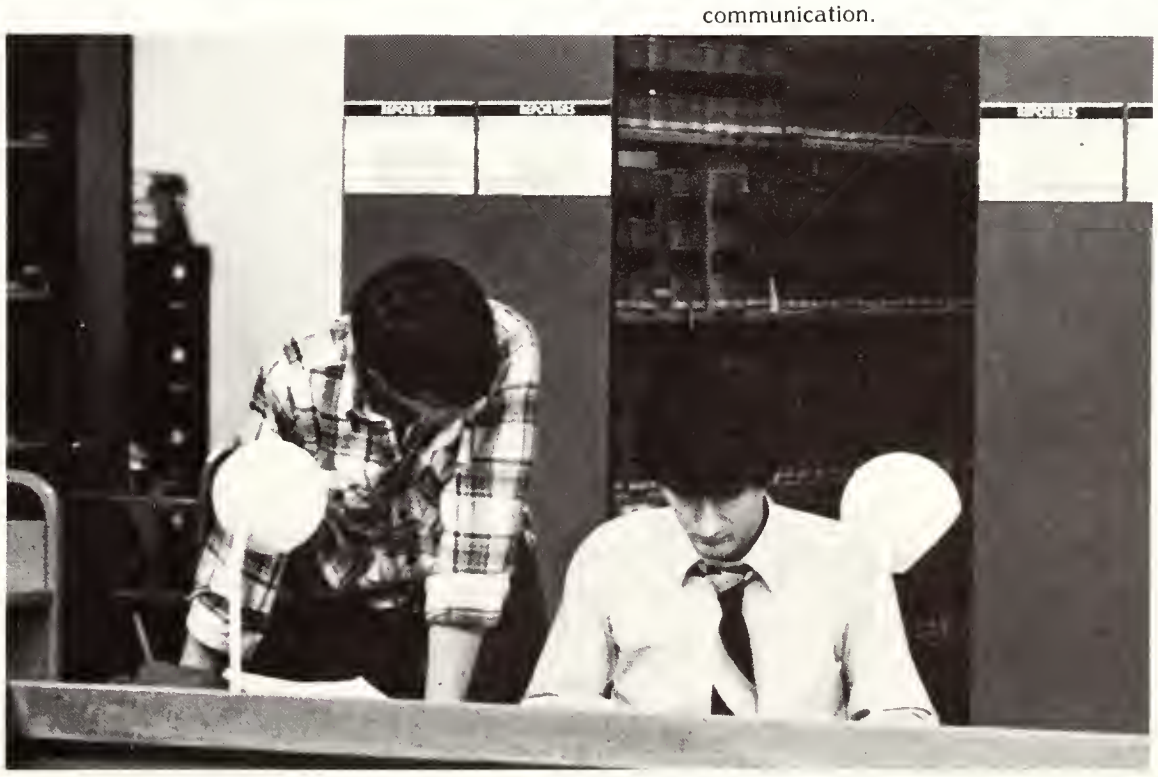
The University of Akron School of Law offers students legal studies leading to the Juris Doctorate Degree.

Students may pursue their study in the day or evening sections, and may participate in organizations and activities designed to further their legal awareness.

Law students sponsored several activities this year to mark Law Week including an address by keynote speaker CBS correspondent Fred Graham.

Law school graduation exercises are held at E.J. Thomas Hall.

Student mailboxes are a prime source of communication.



Students spend many hours in the law library.

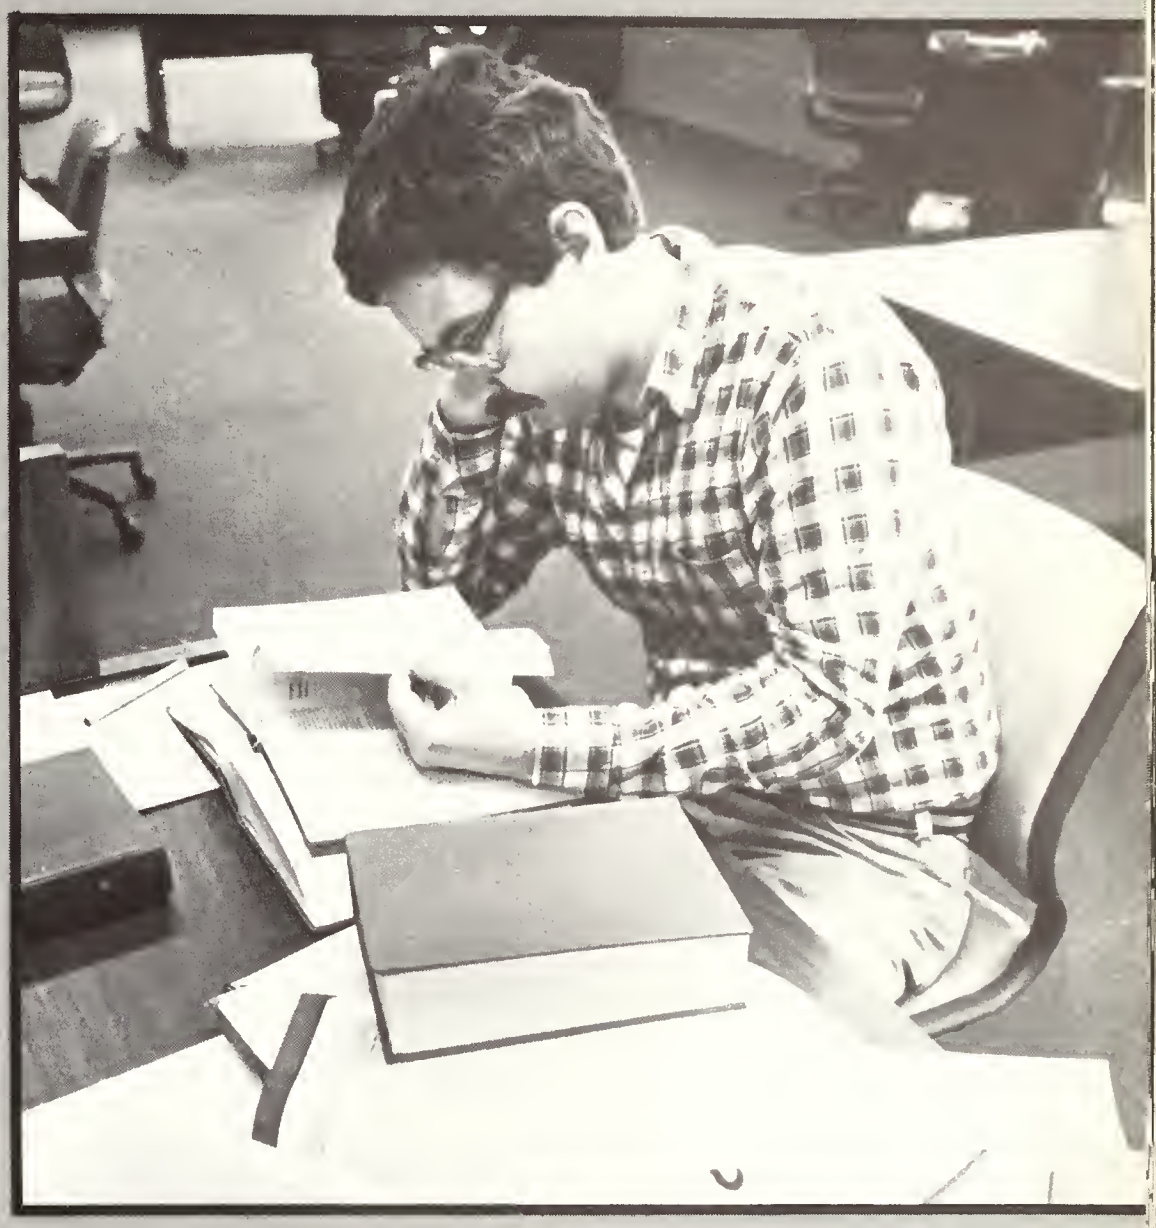
The Northeastern Ohio Universities' College of Medicine (NEOUCOM) was established in 1973 and marked an innovation in quality medical education for the state and the country.

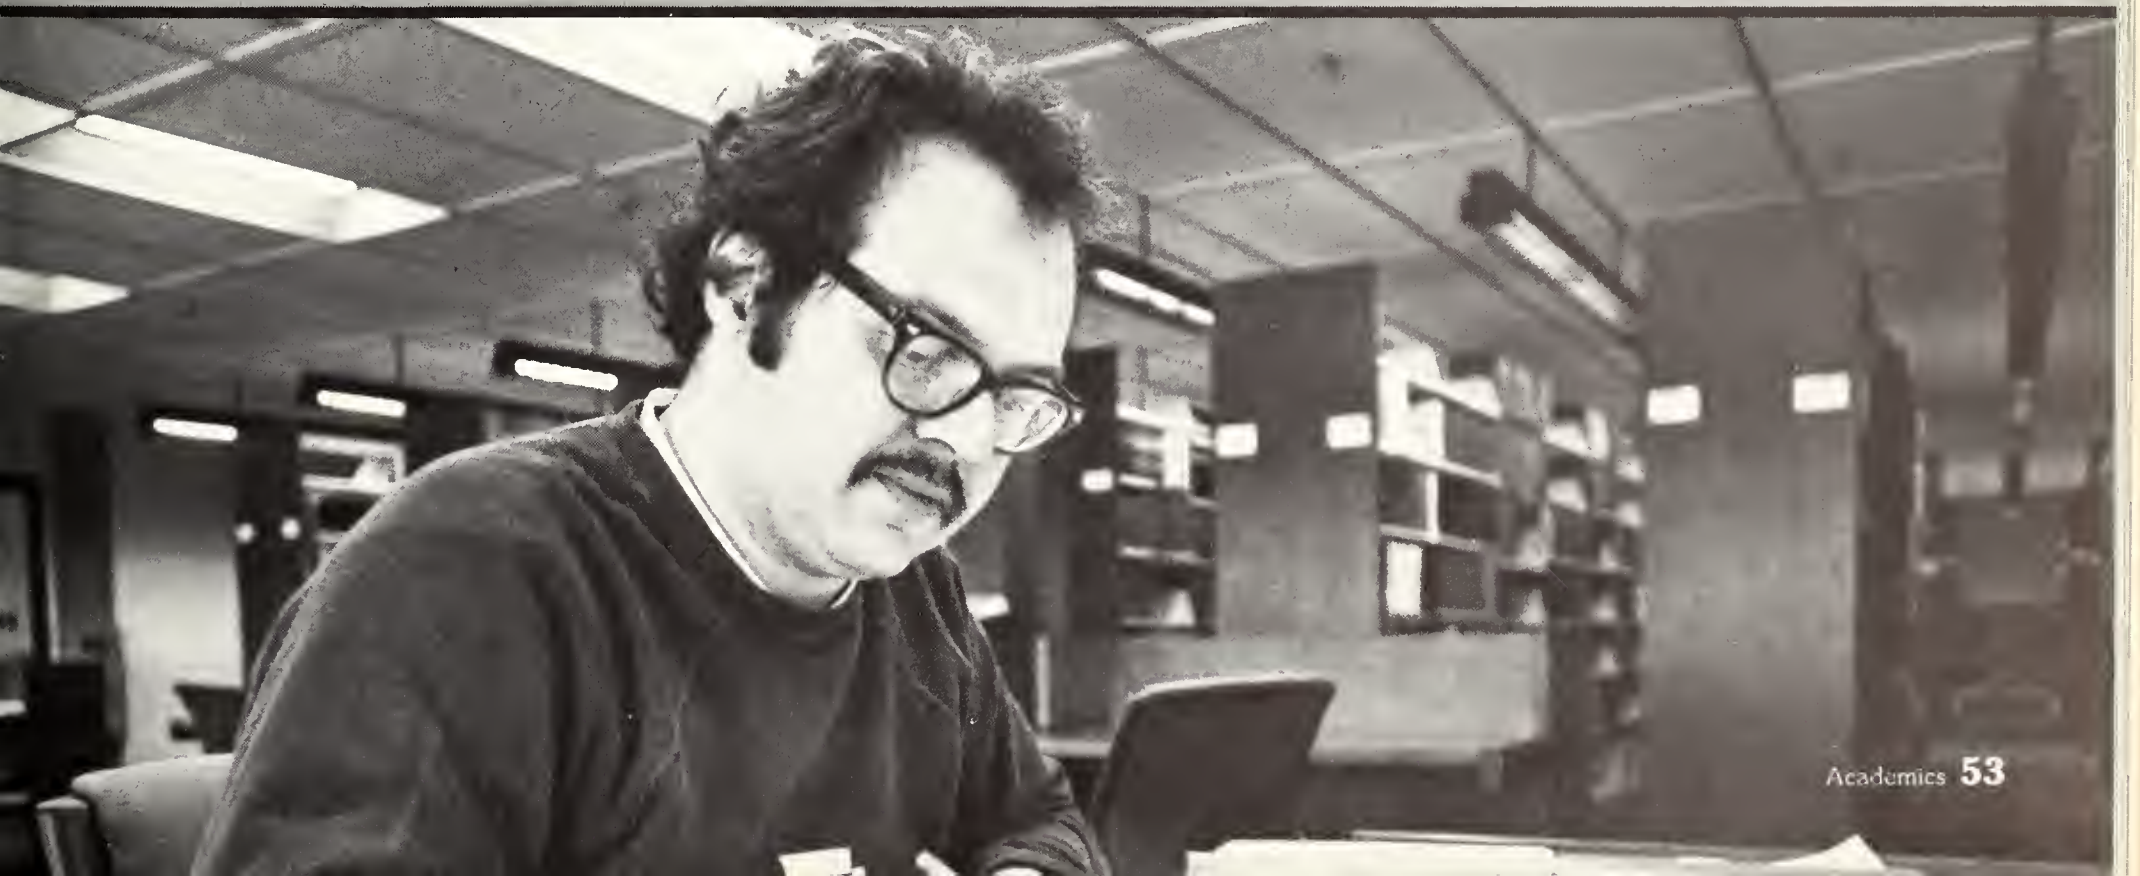
Students from The University of Akron, Youngstown State University, and Kent State University may be selected for the six-year curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Science degree and the Doctor of Medicine degree.

Reading research complements skills learned in labs.

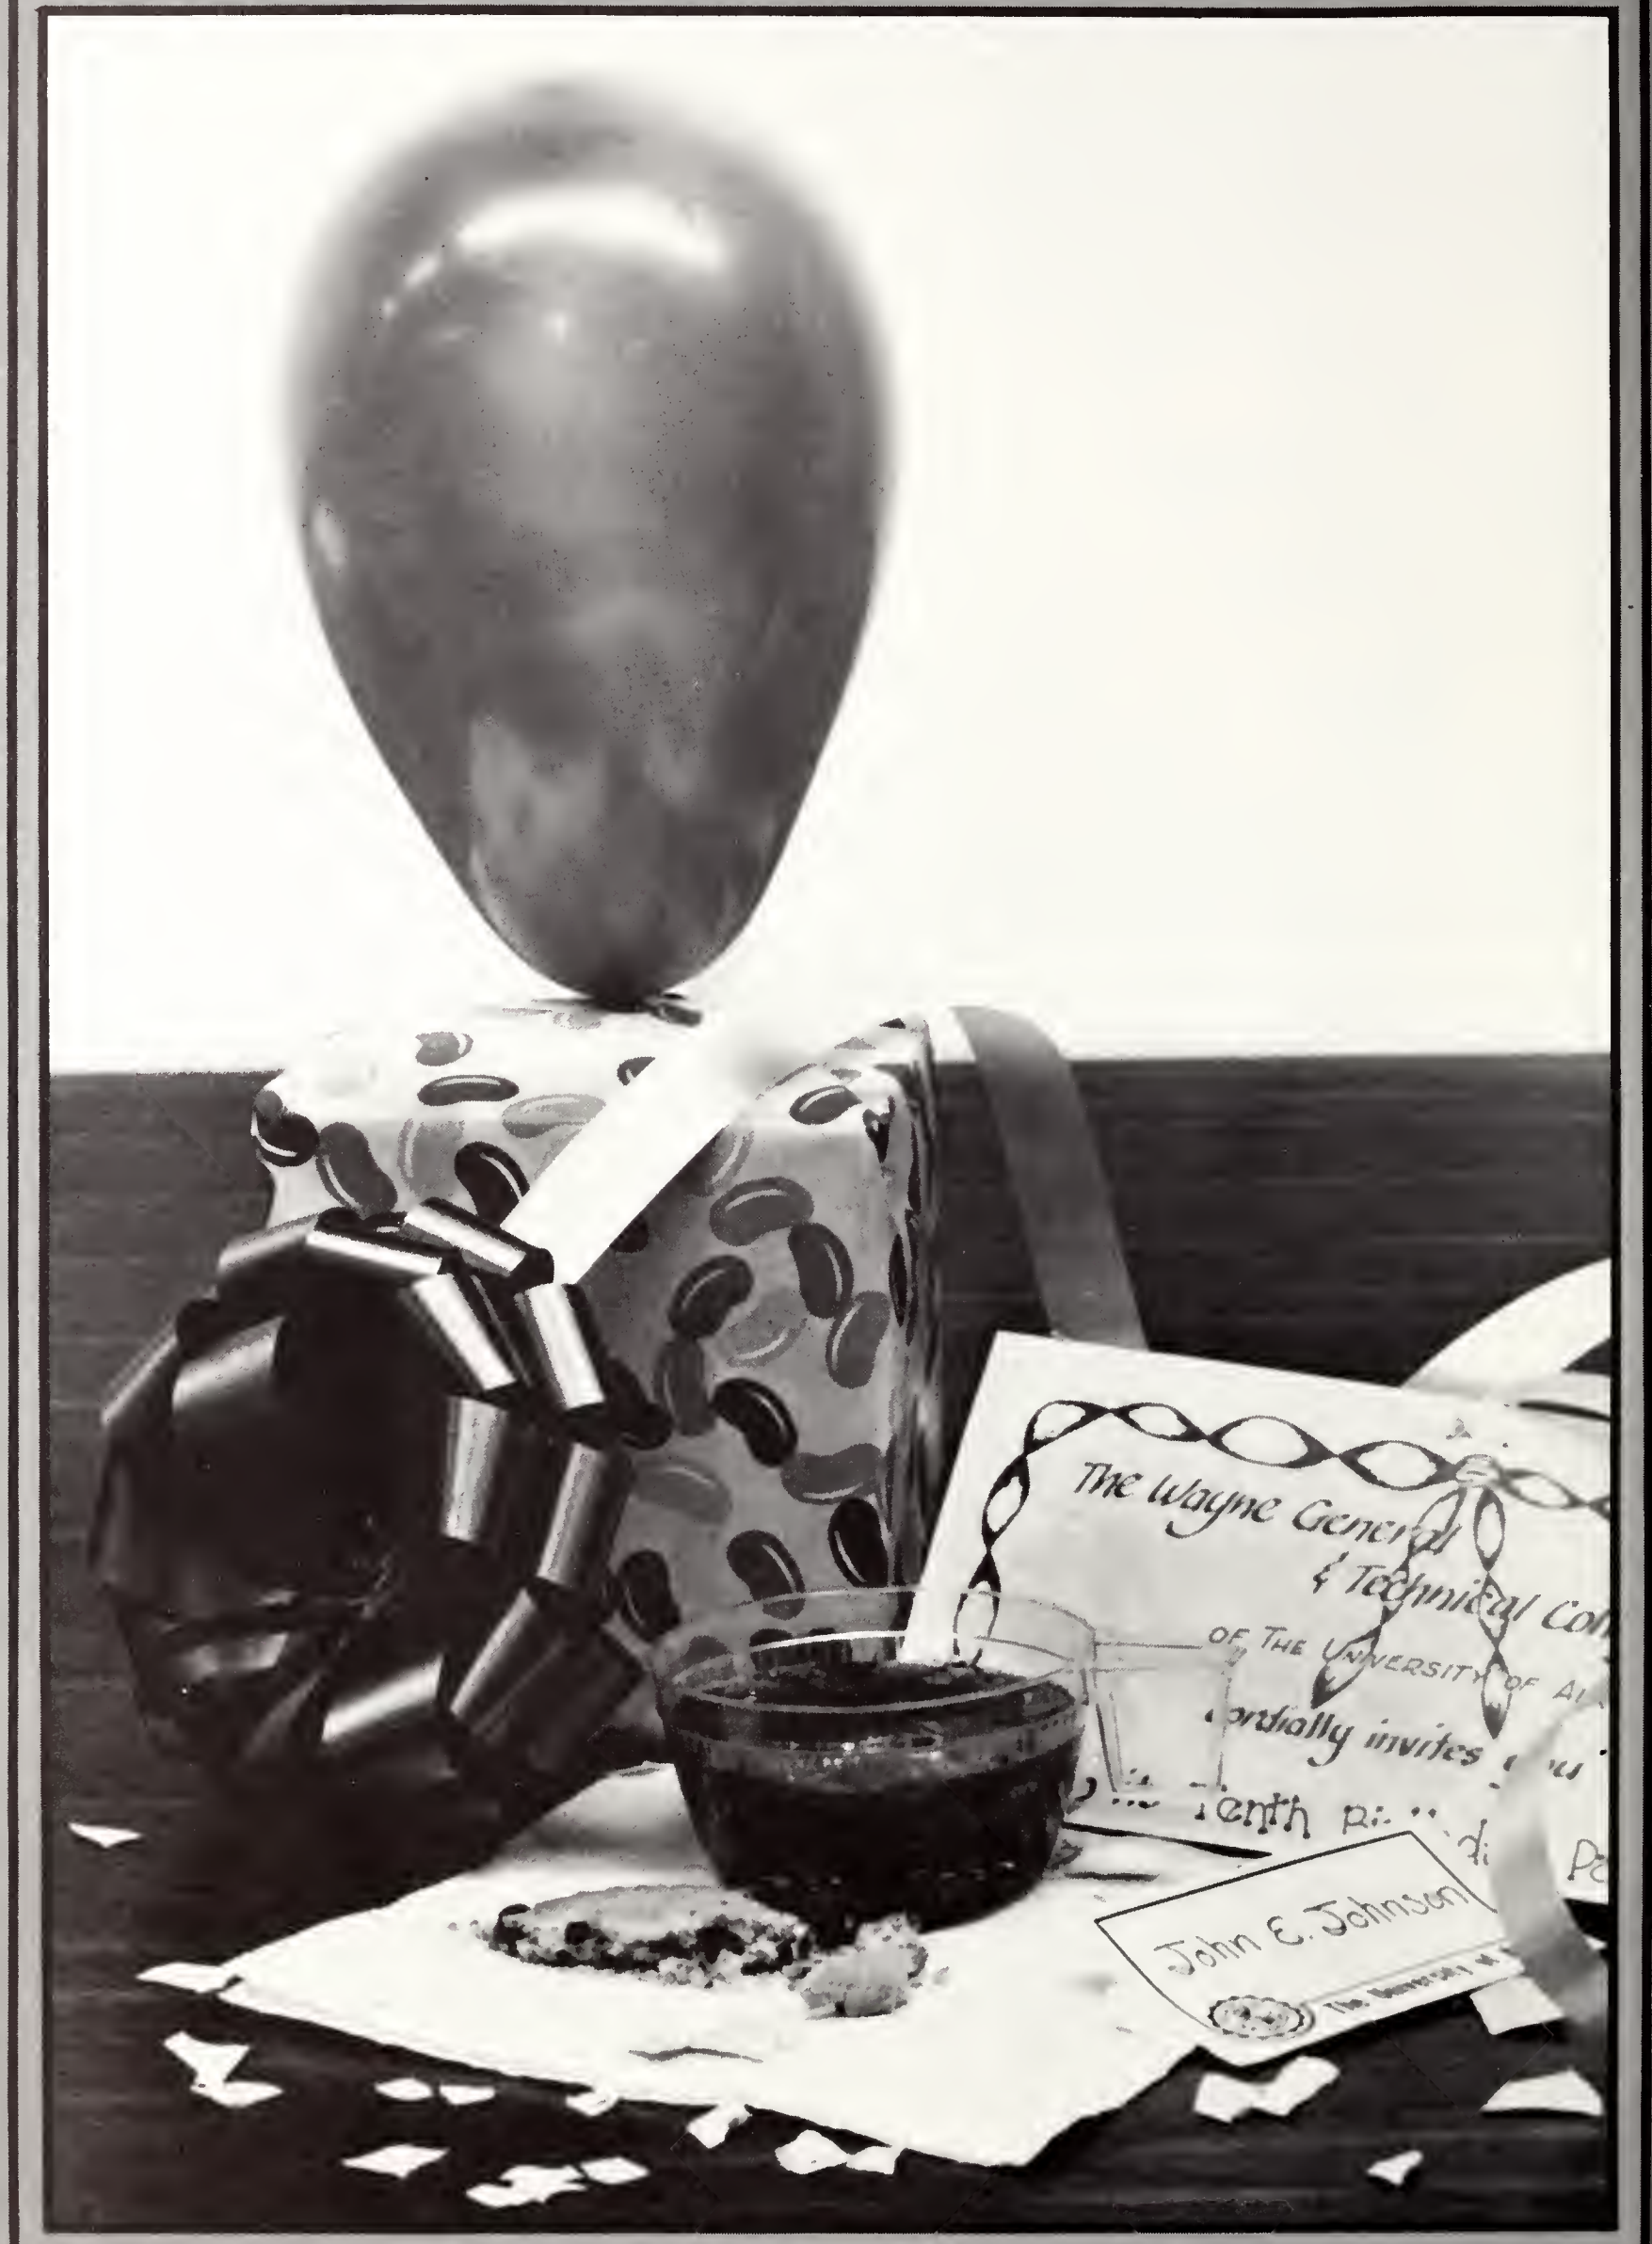
NEOUCOM's library provides students with recent medical reports.



Research is always a big part of medical studies.



Wayne General and Technical College



The Wayne General and Technical College celebrated its tenth anniversary on September 26, 1983.

Festivities included the dedication of the computer lab, an Orrville Community Band concert, and recognition of ten-year employees and faculty at Wayne General.

Located near Orrville, the campus offers courses that allow students to complete their general requirements necessary for a four-year degree.

Students may also earn an associate degree in the fields of secretarial science, social services, and retail management.

The Wayne General and Technical College provides a perfect environment for studying.

New

New Directions gives freshmen a chance to get to know one another and the university.

For the first time at The University of Akron, a program, titled New Directions, was presented for freshmen and their parents.

The program gave them a forum to learn about college life and the opportunities it provides.

Exhibit booths, tours of several departments, interest sessions, and different forms of entertainment, such as music and dancing, were part of the program.

Many events sponsored by student organizations welcomed people back to The University of Akron this fall.

Dances, several different contests, a fashion show, an outdoor movie, and Akron U. Night at the Agora gave students a variety of ways to meet people and renew old friendships.

Many people participate in the Cookie Eating Contest.

Activities Fair

Early this fall, campus organizations participated in the annual Activities Fair to orient students to their organizations.

The Activities Fair was a valuable way for students to get information about groups and to become involved.

Students Approve Charter

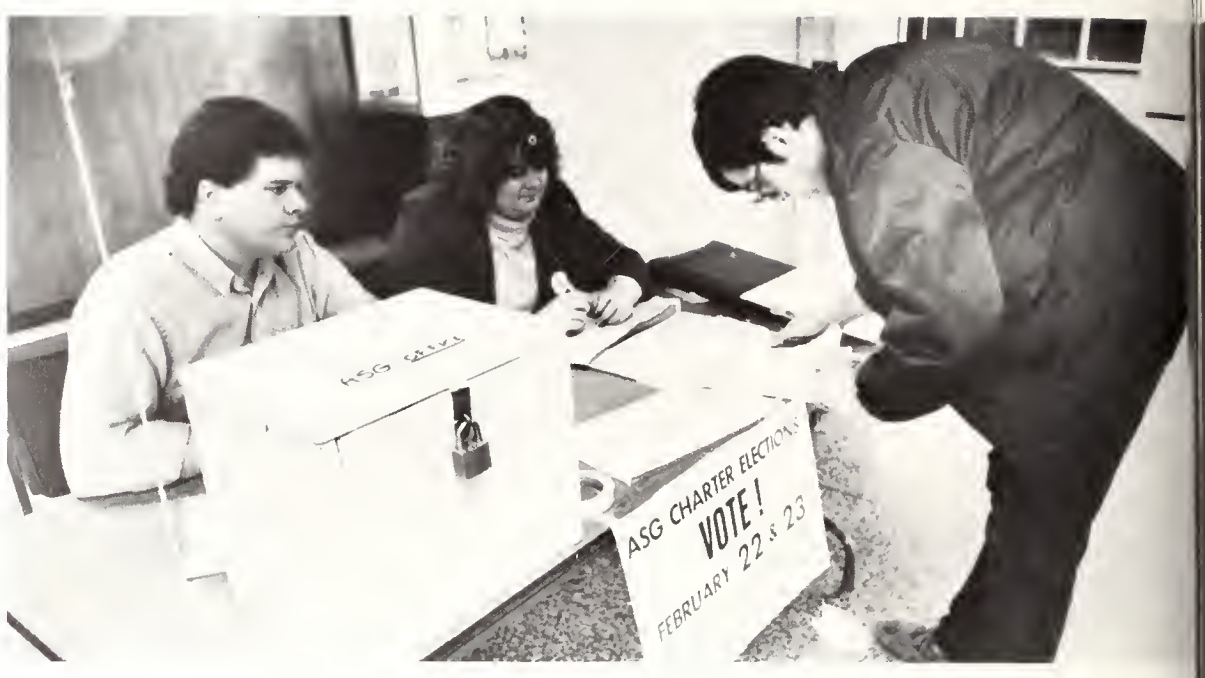
Acting as a liason for the student body and the administration, Associated Student Government (ASG) provided recommendations in the development of university policies and procedures concerning students.

ASG also dealt with allocations from the extracurricular activities fund to day undergraduate organizations.

In February, a special election was held for the well-debated charter proposal. It was voted down, but a revised version was passed during the general election in April.

The new charter included a reduction in the size and composition of the ASG Senate in an effort to increase cohesion.

Rob Kochis and Rodney Yates were also elected to the offices of ASG President and Vice President for the 1983-84 school year.



A voter marks his choice on the ballot during the special election.

CAB: On the Move

Campus Activities Board (CAB) sponsored many events during the school year. Some of the board's major accomplishments included the Renaissance Fayre, a Native American festival, and Homecoming. CAB also sponsored many lectures. This year, a major speaker was Donald Lambro, reporter on the Washington economy.

SCP: Let Us Entertain You

The Student Center Programming Board (SCP) was one organization that helped make days and nights on campus more enjoyable.

SCP provided musical video tapes in the student center lobby, movies in the new theater, several local bands in the Chuckery, and weekly T.G.I.F. parties.

It also sponsored tournaments in pool, chess, darts, table soccer, and pinball. The year was highlighted by a weekend trip to New York City, a cruise to the Bahamas, and a beach party with John Lanigan.

Sharing Cultures

Two organizations on campus are designed to share different forms of culture with the campus community.

The International Students Club acts as an advisory committee to other international student groups. The group plans activities such as tours, workshops, trips, and other social events.

The Black United Students Union (BUS) sponsors activities such as Edul-A-Dah Week, Black History Month, and African Awareness Week. This year, the group welcomed Eleanor Holmes Norton, the first woman chairperson of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Unity for Night Students

The Evening Student Council provided a link between various evening organizations such as Alpha Sigma Lambda, Chi Sigma Nu, and Gamma Beta. It helped to bring understanding to the issues in which the students and the administration are concerned.

As a social group, the council encouraged and sponsored events and cultural activities such as the Alex Bevan concert. These events aided in developing a sense of unity and friendship among evening students.

Evening Involvement

Involvement for evening students is enhanced through participation in Chi Sigma Nu, a national fraternity, and Gamma Beta, an organization open to non-traditional women.

Both organizations work to form a bond among students who attend The University of Akron at night.

Gamma Beta sponsored several activities this year including fund raisers, speakers, and a rape seminar which was open to the campus community.

The Buchtelite Named All-American

Published every Tuesday and Friday during the school year, The Buchtelite had a circulation of 10,000 copies per issue.

The student newspaper featured coverage of college sports, entertainment reviews, letters to the editor, editorials, and campus news.

Entered in the Associated Collegiate Press Awards (ACPA), The Buchtelite again received highest honors by being named an All-American Newspaper for the second straight year.

Pat Sandy was also awarded first place among college cartoonists by the National Council of College Publications Advisors (NCCPA).

Serving the Community While Gaining Experience

In the broadcast booth, Scott Brabham adjusts the equipment.

With input from over 150 students and members of the community, WAUP broadcast 6,205 hours of programming throughout the year. Student-produced public affairs, news, and musical programs served to inform and entertain the listening public.

WAUP has received recognition from over 50 community organizations for services provided by the student broadcasters. In return, the students gained worthwhile training and experience that will be helpful in attaining a future job in the broadcast industry.

Freshman Honoraries Induct 137

Twice a year, the Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma honor societies induct freshmen who have achieved a 3.5 grade point average and are full-time students.

Alpha Lambda Delta, the women's honorary, welcomed 20 new members in the fall, and 41 in the spring.

Phi Eta Sigma inducted 39 men in the fall, and 37 in the spring.

Both honoraries provided student tutoring throughout the school year, raised funds for scholarships, and held social events for members.

The American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) participated in the Concrete Canoe Classic. The team upheld a tradition by placing first in the competition. The group also sponsored speakers and worked on design projects.

In the spring, these two organizations joined with Tau Beta Pi, the engineering honorary, to sponsor the annual Engineers' Brawl. In addition, Tau Beta Pi hosted the district Tau Beta Pi conference.

Gaining Experience

The Advertising Club allows students to prepare professional advertising campaigns. The club's main focus is the national competition held in Columbus. Members develop a presentation for a major product and then compete against 20 other schools in the Ohio area. The club has done well in the past and anticipates another successful showing.

Advertising Club member Kim Butler attends a meeting.

Looking Ahead

The Finance Club provides students with the opportunity to gain knowledge about the world of finance. Along with their trip to New York City, the club takes several field trips to banks and brokerage firms. Also, "The Game" gives students a chance to manage a $100,000 portfolio without risks of real losses.

Gaining Skills

The American Society for Personnel Administration (ASPA) and Pi Sigma Epsilon (PSE), a professional marketing fraternity, exist to help students gain experience and skills related to their future business careers.

Both groups helped to sponsor the CBA (College of Business Administration) Spring Fling.

The University of Akron Chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon competes nationally each year for honors and awards at the annual conference. Members participate in marketing and sales activities to raise funds, while also participating in speaker programs, philanthropies, and social events.

ASPA had regular meetings, sponsored speakers and held activities related to personnel administration.

Expanding Classroom Experience

Delta Nu Alpha, a transportation honorary, allows students to build on classroom knowledge by attending regular meetings which highlight community speakers.

The International Food Service Executives Association provides for experience to complement classroom principles. Members planned special dinners this year for organizations, and held a pancake breakfast. Members also sponsored a brat fry for May Day.

Computers for Everyone

The Computer Science Club is for everyone interested in computers. The group has a series of educational programs and many guest speakers.

This year, the group took a field trip to NASA, and sponsored a euchre tournament for charity.

Exploring Health Fields

Both the Collegiate Nursing Students Club and the National Student Speech-Language and Hearing Association (NSSLHA) allow students to look into health fields as career possibilities.

NSSLHA has several activities each semester including social events, luncheons, seminars, and workshops.

Students in the Collegiate Nursing Students Club sponsor events such as the annual Nursing Career Day, speakers, field trips, and fund raisers.

Many organizations discuss job possibilities with nursing students.

NSSLHA members get together to try out speech games.

Students learn about nursing careers at the annual Nursing Career Day.

The NSSLHA has several activities each year for members.

Supporting Social Work

Through the Student Social Work League (SSWL), students became involved in issues of common concern.

SSWL supported existing social work programs in the community, provided legislative information for programs, and established representation in professional organizations.

Activities included two workshops, "Caring for the Aged" and "Employment Opportunities Now and in the Future," and a Social Work Awareness Day.

Exceptional Help to Kids

Affiliated with both the Ohio and the International Council for Exceptional Children (CEC), the UA chapter sponsored many events throughout the year serving handicapped children.

Included in the schedule were a Handicap Awareness Day and a Career and Economic Opportunity Day.

The students also tutored classes in local school districts, and wrote letters to congressmen in favor of separate funding for educating exceptional children.

Exploring Interests

Along with other activities this year, the members of Gamma Theta Upsilon worked with the Geography Club and The American Congress on Surveying and Mapping to sponsor the annual Map Sale for students and faculty.

Members of the Stargate Club had several social events, sponsored regular meetings, and held a conference on science fiction and fantasy in the fall.

Activities Lead to Understanding

Activities sponsored by the College Republican Club and the Pre-Law Club aided understanding about careers and current events for participating students this year.

The College Republicans sponsored a news conference and information tables concerning nuclear arms. The Pre-Law Club took field trips to area law schools and sponsored speakers who discussed law school attendance and various areas of law.

Checkmate

The Chess and Go Club provides a challenge for all those interested in the game. Many of the members have attained ranks of Master or Grand Master by competing in tournaments. The club is affiliated with the Akron City Chess Club and has sponsored many intercollegiate chess tournaments.

Christian Fellowship

A Christian musical group performs in West Hilltop.

Meeting individual spiritual needs was the main purpose of Students for Christ. Weekly gatherings in Summit Lounge provided time for fellowship, entertainment, and study.

Each year, a major outreach program was planned to encourage new membership and to give information about the organization. New people were always welcome to join.

The Bread of Life Student Group (now known as University Christian Outreach) also welcomed those interested in Christian fellowship. Regular meetings gave members a chance to get together for scripture study and other activities.

Social events, such as bowling night, provided a fun-filled bonus. Bread of Life sponsored concerts on campus which pleased audiences with contemporary Christian music.

Alpha Omega and Kappa Phi Work Together

By promoting Christian ideals and organizing social activities, the Alpha Omega Christian Fraternity and the Kappa Phi Club had much to offer interested students.

Alpha Omega conducted weekly meetings and Bible studies. The fraternity also participated in a Big Brother program for high school students considering attendance at UA.

In addition to worship services, Kappa Phi kept busy with community projects. It made toys for the Children's Hospital, visited a home for mentally retarded women, and made Thanksgiving donations of food for Haitian families.

One of the highlights of the many social activities held by both groups was a combined event with readings and songs.

In addition to visiting the Newman Center Senior Citizens' Retirement Complex monthly, they also have weekly Bible studies and fellowship parties.

New Horizons

The Ecumenical Christian Association worked to broaden the minds and spirits of its members. The group was made up of those of both the Protestant and the Catholic denominations.

The association sponsored many social and charitable activities. A Thanksgiving celebration and several retreats were held, and a trip to the Holy Land was planned.

The association's main purpose was service projects. Members performed at the Children's Hospital and collected funds for the Red Bird Mission in Beverly, Kentucky.

The Zips' 1982 season was full of surprise and success. Battling preseason injuries, the Zips compiled a 5-0-2 streak to rank them seventh in the nation, which is their highest rank yet.

Other highlights of the season included capturing the Ohio Collegiate Soccer Association (OCSA) championship and defeating rival Cleveland State.

Matt English was honored as the Most Valuable Player of 1982, while Simon Spelling was the top defensive player and Ray Szabat was the most improved player. These achievements all came under the guidance of the new head coach, Steve Parker.

Zips Place Second in O.V.C.

The Akron Zips concluded the 1982 season with a winning mark of 6 wins and 5 losses.

In the opener, played at rival Youngstown State, they played a successful game and began their march toward placing second in the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC)

Despite being 2-4 on the road, the Zips were almost perfect on the home ground with a 4-1 record.

Coach Jim Dennison was voted Coach of the Year in the O.V.C., while tailback James Black and interior-defenseman Frank Mazgaj were named the Most Valuable Players for the Zips.

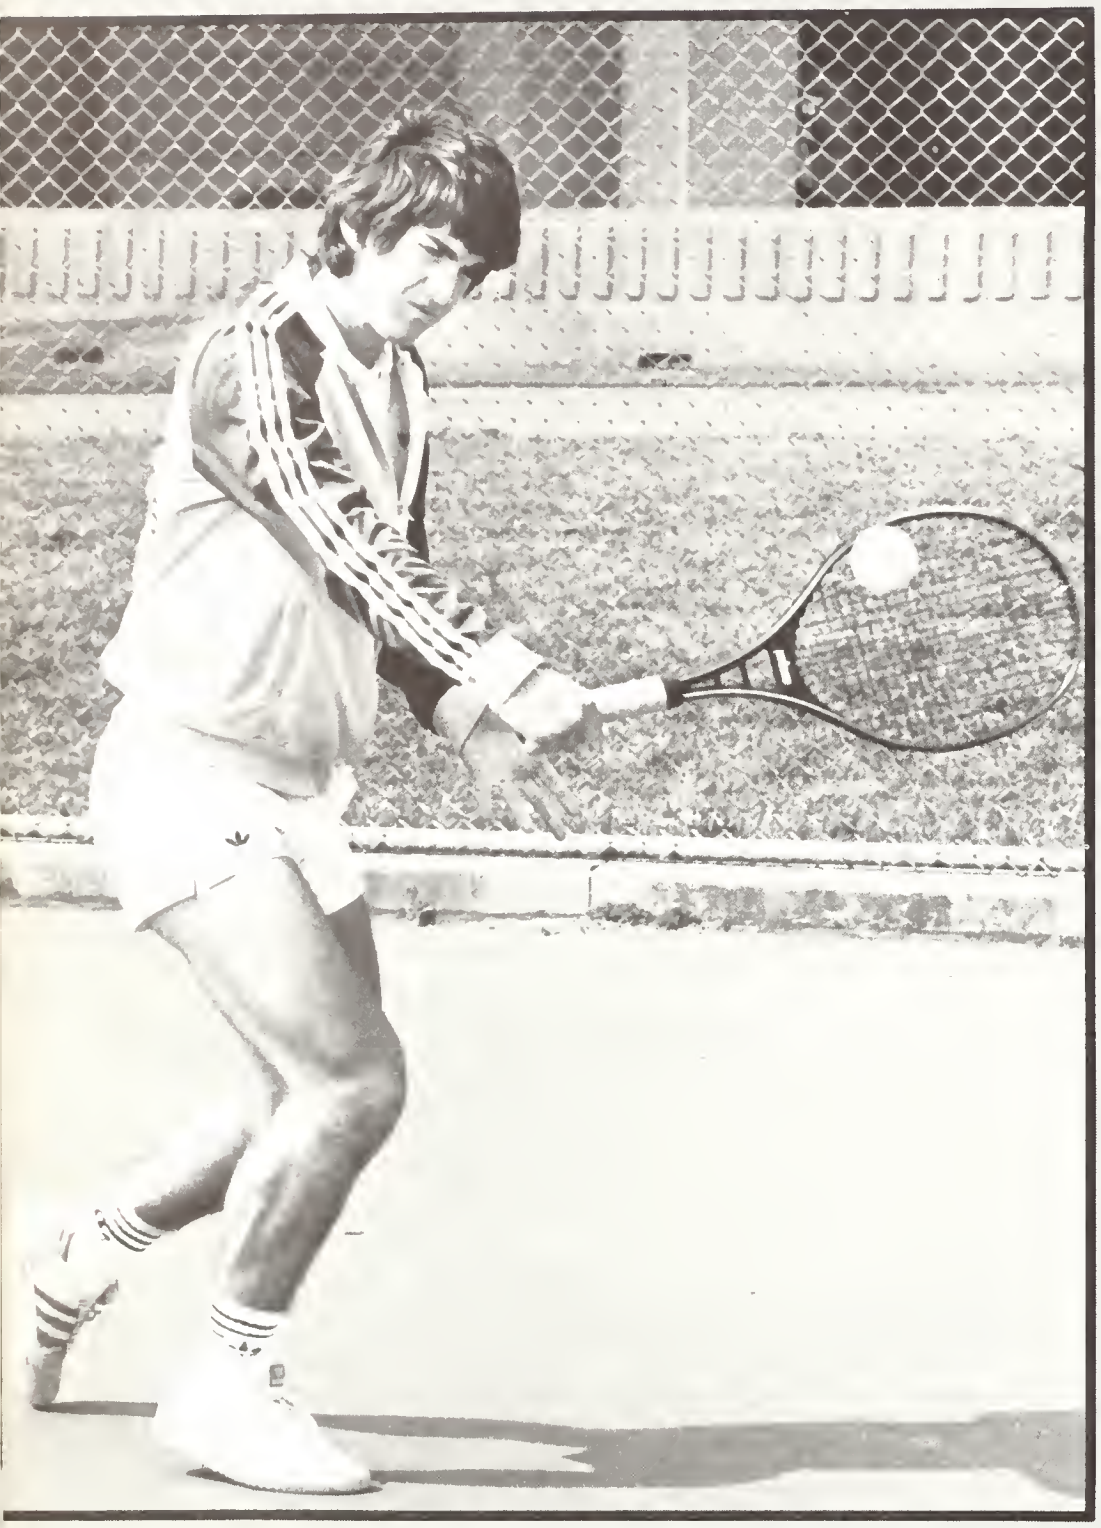
Zips Net High Showing at O.V.C.



Most Valuable Player Tony Catlin

Closing with five straight victories, the Zip Men's Tennis Team finished off its 1983 season with a 12-15 record.

A highlight of the season included a sixth place finish at the O.V.C. meet, which established the team's highest showing ever.

Tony Catlin proved to be an important asset to the team by producing winning combinations with Brian Irons, Mike Willis, and Mike Curry. Finishing in fourth place in the fifth singles position, Catlin received the highest individual finish in three years of O.V.C. competition.

Zips String a Winning Season

Celeste McConihe

The impressive 9-6 season record of the 1983 Women's Tennis Team reflected many individual and team achievements.

Ellen Ferrato was named the Most Valuable Player for her outstanding 11-5 mark at number one singles play.

Sportsmanship Award winner Loralee Bolinger combined with Ferrato for a 10-6 doubles record.

Gathering 26 victories in both singles and doubles play, freshman Celeste McConihe was one of the nicest surprises of the season.

Lady Zips Shatter Record with 34 Victories

The Akron Zips Softball Team was stupendous this year. It set a record with 34 victories in the season and finished 34-7-2.

The team was led by Kay Piper who offensively paced the team with doubles, triples, homeruns, and runs batted in.

Nine others all batted above the .3000 mark. Overall, the team out-scored the opposition 5-1 and in 1,000 plate appearances by the other teams, the Zips held them to only 18 extra base hits and zero homeruns. Dani Vance won the Female of the Year Award. She compiled a 28-8 mark as a pitcher with a 0.76 earned-run average in four years. She and Piper were named Most Valuable Players for the 1983 season.

Head Coach Dave Fross entered his tenth season with the Akron Zips this year. His team concluded the season with a very fine 30-16-1 mark.

The Zips opened with a super spring training in which they took 11 games of 15. Leading the Zips were seniors Mike Birkbeck and Bill Swertfager. Together these two held 26 records for Akron. Swertfager played every game of his four year college career, and ended with a 199 game record. Birkbeck, a pitcher-first baseman, made first team All-Ohio-Valley Conference, and left the Zips with a .363 career batting average, and 4-2 pitching record.

The 1982-83 season contained many highlights for the Zip Swim Team. A meaningful win in the 5-1 record included a victory over Youngstown State.

Akron received its highest placing ever at the Penn-Ohio Meet where the Zips finished fifth of eight teams. The individual efforts were outstanding. For example, Steve Cremean, the team's Most Valuable Player, established a conference best in the 100 butterfly and broke the UA record in the 200 butterfly event. Backstroke times belonged to Karl Shaw who set new records in such events.

The team was a well-balanced group without a medalist scorer who shot consistently, which was what they needed to have a winning season.

Riflery Team Shoots to Win

The Akron Riflery Team finished third in the Lake Intercollegiate Riflery Conference with a 27-7 mark.

Bryan Cargould ended the season with a 548.5 of 600 points to place third in the conference.

Four-year shooter Brian Wieghaus was named Most Valuable Shooter, placing 12th in the conference and ranking second on the team.

Susan Kirk was named Most Improved Player by raising her average 58 points in the final meet.

Ski Team Takes Third

The 1982-83 Ski Team, coached by Kevin Darago and led by captains Chris Sheehan and Pat Darago, captured a third place win in the Ohio Division of The Midwest Collegiate Ski Association this season.

With only two of the team's members returning from last season, the team had a successful year despite the youth of the members.

Seasonal Celebrations

RHPB Members dance to the music at the luau.

The group "Risque" performs.

A luau kicked off the Mardi Gras weekend planned for residence hall students.

Matt Patrick spun tunes throughout the evening in which a limbo contest and air guitar demonstration were held. Saturday evening featured a Dance with "Risque." That evening, a pinata contest and a Mardi Gras King and Queen crowning added to the events. The weekend, held in early November, allowed for a bus trip to be taken to the U.A. football game against Morehead State.

Punk rock adds spirit to the Mardi Gras weekend dance.

Sue Sotz and Tim Daugherty keep the music rolling for the all-nighter held in Memorial Hall.

Carmen Bauer, left, and Lynn Ferrighetto reach for their bananas.

Dorm students participate in the euchre competition.

Winter Weekend was held in February. The weekend started off with a dance Friday night and tobogganing in Strongsville on Saturday morning.

Saturday night, RHPB featured an all-nighter in Memorial Hall that included tournaments in volleyball, basketball, and euchre.

Students were able to see the movie "Arthor" and participate in banana and gyro eating contests as well.

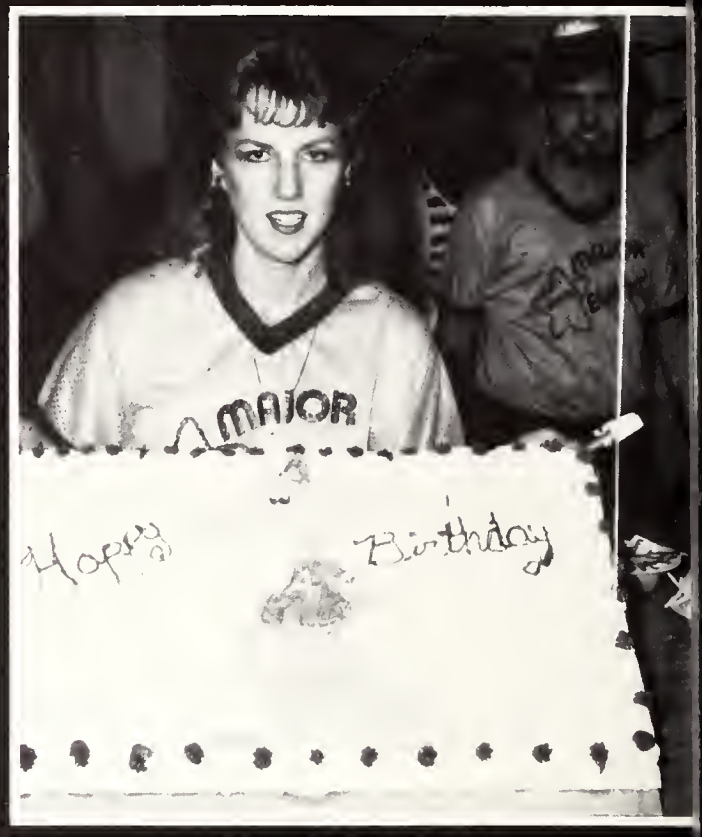
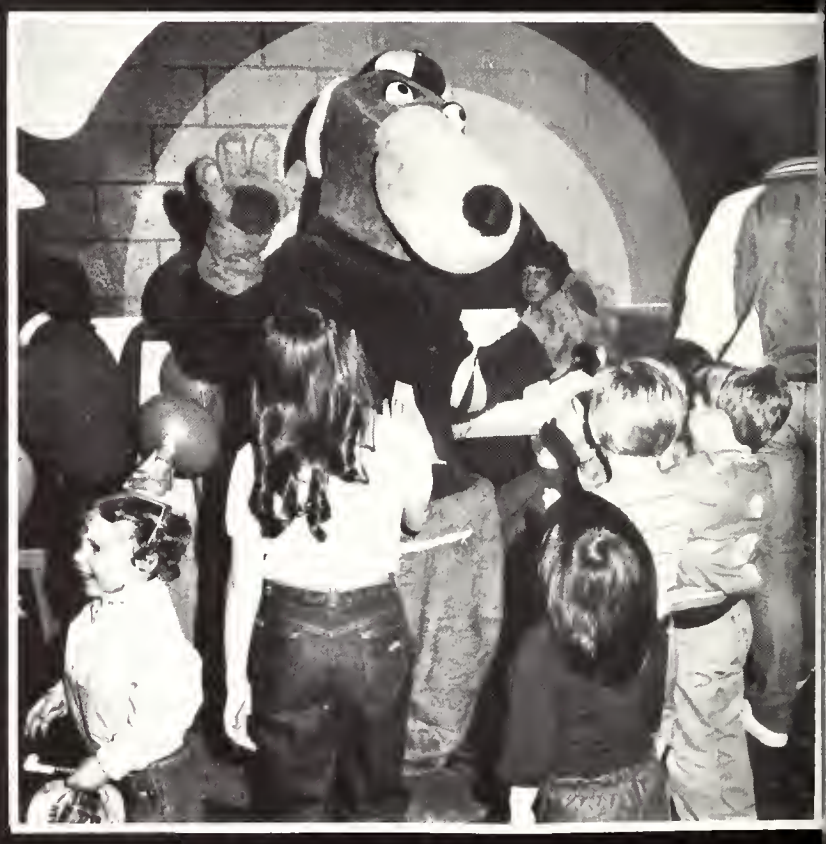
Little Sibs Weekend

Little Sibs Weekend provides fun for all ages.



Happy birthday Zippy!

"Nobody can say we're not giving it a good try!"



Everyone wishes Zippy a happy birthday.

Little Sibs Weekend, sponsored for dorms students' little brothers and sisters, started on Friday with traditional games like pin the tail on the donkey and musical chairs at Zippy's birthday party.

Saturday began with milk and donuts, continued in the afternoon with a variety of movies, and came to a close with performances by Chuck E. Cheese and Tim Settimi.

Video games were available in Robertson for all those interested in challenging their skills. The events sponsored by RHPB made the weekend theme, "Just You and Me Kid," a big success.

The pizza eating contest is one of the crowd's favorites.

Lisa Bobonis, Miss P.J., receives her dozen roses.

Original poses are one of the characteristics judges look for.

The Bulger Beautiful contestants line up for the final pose.

Bulger Dorm Government sponsored their annual Bulger Beautiful Night. The evening included pizza eating, spit-off, and live goldfish eating contests.

Last year's Bulger Beautiful contest winner, James Black, took the honors again by winning first place, while Lisa Bobonis was named Miss P.J.

The Spirng Formal is a highlight of Dorm Week.

This is The University of Akron's version of the game show "Let's Make a Deal."

By the time May hits The University of Akron's campus, dorm residents were restless and full of enthusiasm to finish the spring semester and start a long-awaited summer vacation.

Dorm Week expanded this excitement by letting residents take advantage of a week full of events and fun before the year ended.

Dorm Week, sponsored by RHPB, featured a talent show, a "Let's Make a Deal" contest, a Bar Night, a Spring Formal, and performances by Jonah Koslen, the Heroes, and Kixx.

New South Hall dormies pose for the photographer before a basketball game.

New South Hall, originally the East Exchange Street Holiday Inn, opened its doors to dorm students fall 1982.

The five story building provides housing for 500 students, and is also used for special university guests. The Unit also serves administrative and educational purposes.

Converting to a residence hall meant improvements such as an entire fire alarm system, laundry room, universal weight room, and complete hallway renovation.

Residents also enjoyed deli foods from Jonos', which was established in the complex.

Gary Hannah left, and Bob McBride challenge each other to a heated game of chess.

TOWN HOUSES

Everyone enjoys a good Townhouse party.

Four residents gather [illegible] barbecue.

Chandler Mazael, Joe Sebastian, Dave Potter, and Don Lloyd enjoy a dip in their backyard with the help of a few beers.

An adjustment that new townhouse residents had to face was learning to share bathroom facilities and living areas with five or seven other roommates in an apartment setting.

Last fall residents also had to become accustomed to the opposite sex living right next door.

The 1982-83 academic year was the first time for women to occupy townhouses. Although the male residents questioned the change when it was brought up last year, they warmly accepted their new female neighbors.

GRANT

Karlene Tisdale, Suzette Frank, Kim Malak and Bozana Jerkic take a needed study break.

Jennifer Guess gets a snack before studying.

A square dance joins students' hands in fun and friendship.

Togetherness and talking on the phone are a part of dorm life.

Grant Residence Center was a favorite alternative for students who felt closed in by traditional dorm living arrangements.

Residents faced the adjustment of living with two, three or five roommates and a longer walk to campus. The advantages included homier surroundings with separate bathroom and kitchen facilities.

Grant scheduled activities with the Townhouses, such as roller skating, square dancing, and courtyard parties.

Students hang onto each other as they skate to their favorite rock and roll hits

SUMNER

Lisa Amato adds to the dorm spirit with Valentine's Day decorations.

Robin Phillips, left, and Pauletta Newett spend the night studying for the next day's classes.

This year, Sumner Hall housed female residents. However, the women carried on the tradition of its former male occupants by having the annual Valentine's Day Bash.

Nicknamed "The Convent," the girls in Sumner set a new standard for parties.

Drive-in movies in the lounge and a picnic at Virginia Kendall Park were some of the events that the residents enjoyed.

TORREY

Mike Myers, left, and Jamie Hilverding curb their appetite with pizza.

John Wagner finds a comfortable spot to study.

Willie Davis stays in touch with home.

Mark Margevicius maintains his typing speed with music.

While Torrey is the smallest male residence hall, residents held many activities that were a large part of dorm life.

The 60 residents planned two successful holiday parties and went on a fall canoe trip with residents of other dorms.

Chris Carpenter, left, and Bob Weagraff talk about the day's activities.

BERNS

Trisha Fisher, Marlisa Kline, and Diane Mador stick together.

Joanne Earich, Beverly Mayle, and Lisa Randazzb relax.

Kimberly Freeman works on her English paper.

Tina Gill finds an alternative to studying.

Built as a co-ed dorm, Berns now houses only women.

The residents held ice cream socials, a "Dynasty" party, and a Bombing-of-Berns party.

The women formed a volleyball team with AGD and Thompson Hall residents, and they worked with Theta Chi Fraternity on a paper drive.

AGD

Natale Tufford, Rob Pfister, and Dana Fehrenbach talk.

Smilja Radan talks on the phone.

Phee-Kuen Chang, Jeri Jackson, and Terri Kiepper chat.

Residents of AGD sponsored an "Animal House" party this year that was very successful.

The women also celebrated Christmas by providing the dorm with all the trimmings.

In the spring, "AGD Beach" became the favorite gathering spot for residents and their friends.

Pattie O'Malley, Sue Joseph, and Darlene Wolford get together.

THOMPSON

The Tuck-In is a successful project.

Sheila Buckley, left, and Sue Ellen Ensinger get ready for Tuck-In.

Lucy Will and Kelly Porter show off their floor shirts.

Sheri Sauer catches an afternoon snooze.

The annual Thompson Hall Tuck-In started off the year for the Thompson Hall residents. The women also participated in secret spooks for Halloween and held a Christmas party.

The residents celebrated spring by going on a canoe trip and sponsoring a luau.

They ended the year with the annual parent-daughter dinner and dorm banquet.

BATTRICK AND MITCHELL

Ice cream socials are a favorite activity.

Playing Quarters starts the weekend on Thursdays.

Bobbi Roessler, Janice Geer, Muffy Spoerke

Anne Siegenthaler, Sharon Crawford, and Adrienne Wells

Residents of Battrick and Mitchell held happy hours, ice cream socials, and holiday dinners during the year.

The women also went on a canoe trip, and participated in the intramurals program with their flag football team, which made the semi-finals.

Jo Ellen Hedrick studies in her apartment.

SPANTON

Mary Jo Vayo opens a present on her 19th birthday.

Tonia Fitch gets some rest before studying.

Deb Schumann and her roommate paper a neighbor's door.

Spanton residents—ready for a night on the town.

Residents enjoy an ice cream social.

Spanton residents enjoyed many activities this year.

Residents sponsored a Homecoming spirit link contest, a Roommate Day competition, a rootbeer and Bingo night, and several ice cream socials.

Jill enjoys truly fine dining at one of her presentations — a beauty salon treat.

Bev Di Amico, Dorylia Brindo, and Sandy Flugan finish their hearty meals at Robertson.

When CBS aired the final episode of its hit series "M.A.S.H.", Ritchie residents joined the millions of viewers watching the show. Residents celebrated the historical events and said their last goodbyes to favorites such as Hawkeye, Radar, and Hotlips by holding a Pre-M.A.S.H. Bash.

Throughout the year, residents participated in flag football games, and sponsored the annual "Ritchie Pub." They also held fund raising events during the holiday season.

ORR

"Are all of these carnations for me?"

Carnation sales were the major fundraising activity of Orr Hall residents.

Orr Hall has been used to describe many room renovations this year.

Residents received a room cookout, room breaks, [illegible] socials and a chicken dinner as a result of the funds that were raised from two carnation sales.

Remodeling of Orr Hall was a welcome sight to residents. Painting, paneling, and new carpeting and a microwave oven made home away from home a little more enjoyable.

Orr residents Donna Frank, left, and Julie Chisler

Studying together is part of being roommates.

"What party do we go to next?"

Sisler parties add life to dorm living.

Taking an ice cream break from studying is always a welcome treat.

Sisler dorm demonstrated their unity early in the year by actively participating in intramural sports and continued by holding happy hours, ice cream socials, a picnic, and dorm parties together.

To raise funds for the dorm, Sisler residents sold trick-or-treat bags during Halloween in Robertson Dining Hall. Some of the money went toward a new bulletin board for the dorm.

Senior Board

Senior Class President Rick Higbee introduces a reception speaker.

This year's Senior Board, in conjunction with the Alumni Association, provided a series of Senior Receptions for each of the University's colleges.

These receptions gave seniors the opportunity to meet with their college dean, faculty, fellow seniors, and distinguished alumni in a social setting, along with introducing them to the Senior Challenge program.

Through this program, 1983 graduates contributed over $16,000 to the university.

The Senior Board expanded the opportunities and functions available to seniors by sponsoring T.G.I.F. parties at the University Club, along with Senior Night at the Rubber Bowl.

A Time of New Beginnings . . .

A graduate celebrates.

1983 Spring Commencement

1983 Valedictorian Margaret Jane Csejtey.

President Guzzetta congratulates a graduate.

Over 1,500 graduating seniors attend graduation exercises.

1983 Commencement was held at the Richfield Coliseum May 28. During the ceremony, over 1,500 students received degrees, and over 3,800 degrees were conferred by the university for the 1982-83 school year.

The honorary speaker was Jean Ripert, Director General for Development and International Economic Cooperation for the United Nations.

R.O.T.C. Commissioning

A cadet receives his commission at the May 21 ceremony held in Summit Lounge.

Cadets take their oaths during the 30th annual joint Army-Air Force commissioning.

A cadet receives his military bars at an earlier awards ceremony.

"But if in your thought you must measure time into seasons,
let each season encircle
all the other seasons,
and let today embrace
the past with remembrance and the future with longing."
